Foreword

To mark time is to duplicate those that have preceded.

To be guided by the experience of others and to be inspired by the fruits of their labor to a greater end is the rudiment of progress.

To embody in our work the mark of progress has been our aim and with this in mind we set about our task.

Fannie Hurst received her degree from the University in 1909 and, since that time, she has done much in the field of literature. Not satisfied with merely writing interesting stories, she has served in various capacities, such as saleswoman, waitress and the like, in order to obtain a more sympathetic viewpoint As a result, her work is known for its human and realistic elements.

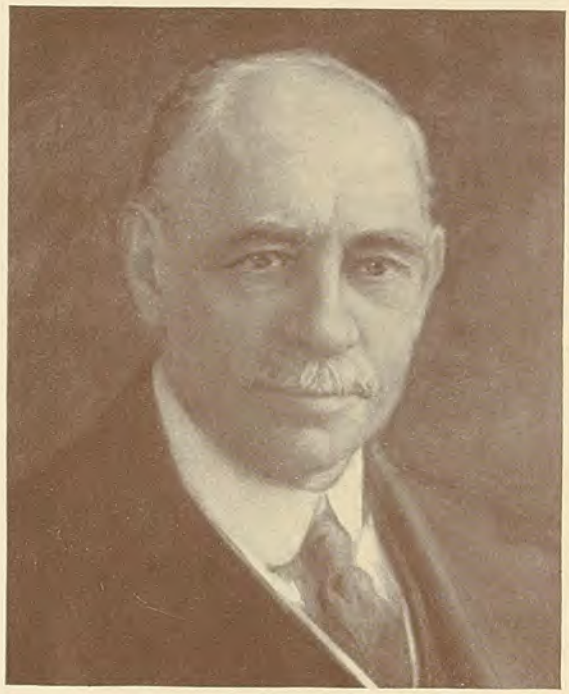

FANNIE HURST, A.B., '09
(Mrs. Jacques Danielson)

THE question of the intrinsic value of college education is constantly up before the tribunal of public opinion. Do college men and women excel at the business of life? Is the college bred individual a success? Do four years of university training pay?

My convictions average up on the "Yes" side. It is true that some of the most educated men and women I know have not enjoyed university training. On the other hand, the majority of educated men and women I know, have!

For myself, I can only say that to my four years in college, I owe a quickened intellectual curiosity which has since helped me to explore my way into a life of wider horizon and higher ideal.

Fannie Hurst

George H. Pegram, Chief Engineer of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of New York, graduated from the Civil Engineering School in 1877. He has been chief engineer for several concerns, including the Union Pacific Railway System. In 1893, he designed the train house of the St. Louis Union Station, and, in 1917, he was president of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

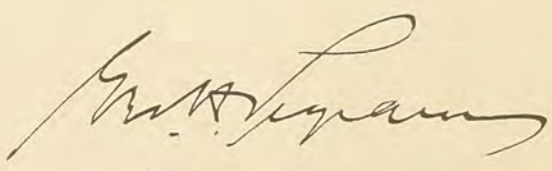

GEORGE H. PEGRAM, C.E., '87

I WOULD advise young graduates about to enter the lists of the world's workers to secure, if possible, contact with a great personality. It is wonderful what effect such influences have in moulding one's character.

It is a pity that we often do not realize our obligations to these men at the time.

After having been ground for a while in the mill of experience, I happened to meet an old class-mate, while passing through St. Louis, and suggested that we give a dinner to Professor Woodward and tell him that he was the greatest teacher in the world. He replied: "What's the use? He knows it." That seemed sufficient, but I then realized that I had not known it until I had applied in practice those principles which his homely illustrations had fixed in my mind.

So it has been with other great personalities to whom I am likewise indebted.

Hon. J. Hugo Grimm graduated in the Law Class of '86 and immediately entered into his profession as an associate in the firm of Hitchcock, Madill and Finkelnburg. He has been judge of the Circuit Court since 1908, and a member of the Advisory Committee of the American Judicature Society since its organization.

J. Hugo Grimm, L.L.B., '86

TO every man in public life, indeed to every man, I should like to commend the following statement made by one of England's greatest lawyers, Lord Erskine: "It was a first command and counsel of my earliest youth always to do what my conscience told me to be a duty, and to leave the consequences to God. I shall carry with me the memory, and I trust the practice, of this parental lesson to the grave. I have hitherto followed it, and I have no reason to complain that my obedience to it has been a temporal sacrifice. I have found it, on the contrary, the road to prosperity and wealth."

J Hugo Grimm

Hon. Charles M. Nagel, Law, '72, entered early into public life, serving first as a member of the Missouri State Legislature, then as president of the St. Louis City Council and, still later, as Republican National Committeeman. From 1909 to 1913, he was Secretary of Commerce and Labor in President Taft's Cabinet.

CHARLES M. NAGEL, Law, '72

THE greatest interpreter of composite American sentiment, Abraham Lincoln, said: "He who moulds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes or decisions possible or impossible to be executed."

The most serious struggles have their beginning, not in the tribunals of justice, but far back in the minds and hearts of a people who are blessed or burdened with the all-absorbing task of self-government. In meeting that task the lawyer should be the faithful counselor; and to prepare him for that undertaking, in mind and in character, is at least one of the provinces of a law school.

Charles Nagel

John Blaisdel Shapleigh graduated from the School of Medicine in 1881 and, after studying two years in Vienna, he has ever since resided in St. Louis, where he has specialized on diseases of the ear. He has been professor of Otology at Washington University since 1895 and a member of St. Luke's Hospital Board since 1910. He is a member of the American Otological Society.

JOHN BLAISDEL SHAPLEIGH, A.B., '78; M.D., '81

THE facts of history and of science you learn in college have, of course, their value, but the things you find out about yourself may count for much more in your life."

J. B. Shapleigh

Robert James Terry, Professor of Anatomy at Washington University, received his degree in '01. In 1921, he was made anthropologist for Barnes Hospital. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the American Association of Anatomists; President of the St. Louis Anthropological Society, and Associate Editor of the American Journal and Physical Anthropology. During the war, he was Dean of the Officers' School of Oral and Plastic Surgery.

ROBERT JAMES TERRY, A.B., '01; M.D., '95

You will remember what interest was shown in college education by the young men of our citizen army on their return home. At that time a flood of applications for admission poured into the offices of the registrars. The universities were filled with students. Not the least of the lessons taught by the great war was the value of a university training. Both at home and abroad, in the numerous and various activities of the army, the superiority of service given by the college man was recognized. This fact became deeply impressed.

If the Great War has taught some lessons, it has also added new problems to society's burden and, besides, has quickened into acute stages all the chronic problems of civilization. The world today is in dire need of the services of trained minds. Such zeal for college education as was shown in our returning soldiers should be carefully fostered. This is the moment when every young man and woman in the land with the capacity for higher training should go to college; when the work of investigators and scholars should receive the most generous encouragement; when great effort should be made to support universities and help them in maintaining high standards and ideals.

We, as university graduates, should promulgate the truth of the needs of universities and, as graduates of Washington University, strive to bring to our Alma Mater greater resources to carry on her programme of training and contribution; that she may give the utmost service to mankind.

Yours truly,

R. J. Terry.

Chester B. Price, formerly a student of the School of Architecture, has become especially known in his profession by his renderings of architectural subjects. During the war, he was in charge of the design work on development plans of a suburb of Newport News, Virginia, and he now maintains his own studio in New York City. He is a member of the Architectural League of New York.

CHESTER B. PRICE

"I have not any special message, but I have every good wish for Washington and the School of Architecture."

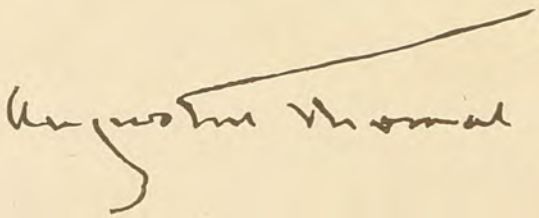

Chester B. Price

AUGUSTUS THOMAS

Augustus Thomas, a former student of the Art School, has gained renown as a playwright of great ability. Before entering upon his profession, his experience was wide and varied, being at one time a newspaper editor and at another a practical railroad man. Besides being Chief Censor of the American Legitimate Stage, he is also president of both the National Institute of Arts and Sciences, and the Society of American Dramatics and Executive Chairman of the Producing Managers Association.

"EXPERIENCE is the name we all give our mistakes. What, as a matter of fact, is so significant as our mistakes? Certainly our successes are not so instructive."

Graduating in the class of 1911, the rapid rise of Hugh Ferriss in the field of architecture has been little less than phenomenal. By 1915 Mr. Ferriss' reputation was such that he opened his own studio, and since that time he has been principally occupied with architectural contributions, of which he has made many, to the leading periodicals of the country.

Mr. Geo. Rider

The new Varsity Song Book, published by the Washington University Union under the joint editorship of R. Paul Buchmueller, '22, and Clark P. Fiske, '22, is a collection of all the old songs of the University, practically all of them having been written by former Washington University students. The sentimental appeal of such a publication is undoubtedly a great step toward awakening in the mind of the student body a stronger "university consciousness."

GEORGE L. RIDER

The Class of 1924 is proud to number Coach Rider among its members. Like us, he first entered the school in September, 1920. Like us, he has spent three years at this institution. But, unlike us, his work at Washington has been enduring, far more enduring than any we have done. And we hope that, unlike us, Coach Rider will continue with Washington University long after June, '24, rolls by.

JOHN E. DAVIS

University of Iowa, '18. He was a member of Iowa's baseball team for three years. He was selected in 1917 as halfback on a mythical All-Western eleven. Davis also played basketball with Iowa. He was coach of Kansas Wesleyan College for two years before coming to Washington, two years ago.

CLARENCE O. APPLEGRAN

Illinois, '20. He made Walter Eckersall's All-Western and All-American football elevens in 1919. As a member of the "Big Ten" basketball champions of 1915, he made the All-Western five. He is also a track letterman. He coached Allegheny College before coming to Washington in 1921.

"W" Dinner

THE annual dinner given by the Washington University Union was held February 8 at the City Club. The attendance was the largest in the history of the dinners, including a large number of high school seniors who had been prominent in athletics at their school.

The Union annually gives the banquets to honor the men who have won letters in Piker athletics in the preceding year and to acquaint the athletes of the St. Louis high schools with happenings at Washington. Fifty-seven letters were awarded; five in basketball, twelve in baseball, sixteen in track, four in tennis, seventeen in football, and three in cross-country. This marked the first time that letters have been given in cross-country.

Dr. Jesse D. White presided as "toastmaster" and made the opening address, dealing with Washington University's growth and progress within the last thirty years. He then introduced Coaches Rider, Davis, and Applegran, who gave enthusiastic talks about Piker athletics.

Dr. Throop spoke on behalf of the faculty and pledged their support to all athletic endeavors. As representatives of the undergraduate athletes, Buddy Cantwell, captain-elect of the football team, and Baldy Thumser, basketball captain and letterman in three sports, were called upon to speak. Fletcher Thomas, a prominent athlete from 1904 to 1907, talked about "old times" and Stanley Wallach spoke on the elevating subject of "Quadwranglics."

One of the most interesting events on the program was an illustrated lecture on undergraduate activities in the early seventies. Dr. Lucius Tupper, of the class of '72, impersonated by Scoop Goldstein, told many interesting anecdotes of "them good old days." "Tupper" was accompanied at the banquet by the four other living members of his class.

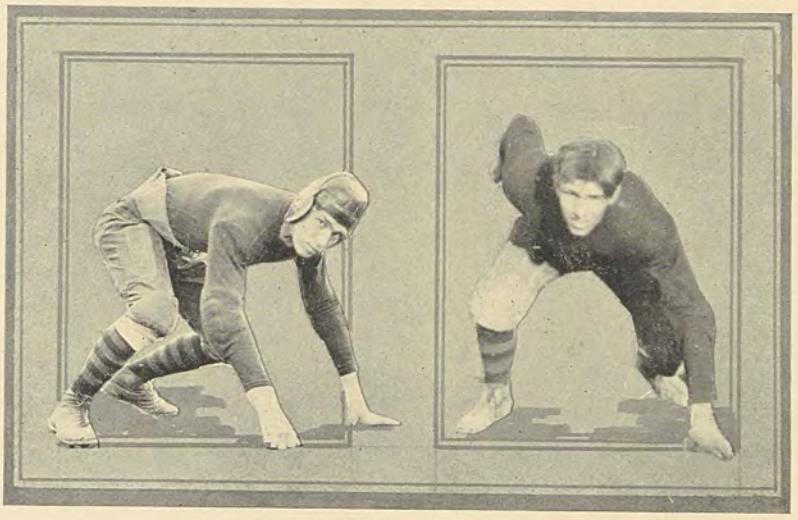

Dean Walter E. McCourt, chairman of the Athletic Council, made the closing address, after which he awarded the varsity letters in the six sports.

FOOTBALL

IT is a good coach indeed who can keep his men fighting through an unsuccessful season, fighting so that after losing five successive conference games the team should come back on Thanksgiving day to hold a team "doped" to be greatly their superior to a scoreless tie. That is just what Coach Rider did last year. The spirit displayed by the men throughout the unsuccessful season of 1922 is a tribute to his personality and ability. And sharing honors with him are Coach Applegran, in charge of the linesmen, and Coach Davis of the freshman squad.

The season opened with good prospects, but injuries to first string men and lack of good reserves caused the downfall of all hopes for a winning team. Nine letter men returned for practice in September. Captain Denny, Schnaus, Cantwell, Dugdale, and Koch reported for line work, with Thumser, Claypool, and Matthes returning to resume their work in the backfield. In addition to these, Gragg, Volland, Fries, Gould, Volland, and many others reported as candidates for positions on the line, while Lyle, Walsh, Weber, Greene, Tancil, and several more were out for the remaining positions in the backfield. However, continuous injuries throughout the season handicapped the teamwork and greatly weakened the playing strength of the team.

The annual game with the Alumni started the season, the Varsity winning by a score of 6 to 0. Washington won the first regular game of the season from Rolla, 14 to 6. Although the wet field made spectacular play impossible, the Piker backfield showed up well. The line, however, displayed great weakness. The first score for Washington came when Milt Koch broke through the Rolla line, intercepted a pass, and ran for a touchdown. The second and last touchdown was made by Thumser when he ran back a punt from the Miner's forty-yard line through the entire Rolla team for a touchdown. Schnaus kicked both goals.

Kansas Aggies

In the first regular conference game of the season, that with Kansas Aggies, the Pikers, although they lost, 22 to 14, displayed their best football of the season. The Aggies outweighed Washington ten pounds to the man and were thoroughly confident of an overwhelming victory. However, the fighting Piker team held them to a comparatively narrow margin of victory.

The Washington touchdowns were the result of two long passes from Claypool to Thumser. The first Baldy received on the one-yard line while surrounded by three Aggie men. He fell across the goal line with the ball with two men hanging onto him. The second pass placed the ball on the three-yard line, and Greene carried it over for a touchdown on the next play. Schnaus added both points after the touchdowns.

The Aggies presented a beautiful passing game, and exhibited wonderful interference. Stark was the individual star of the Aggie team, and, aided by perfect interference, he pulled off many long and sparkling runs. He was responsible for their three touchdowns. The other Aggie points came as a result of a safety scored when Fries, substituting for Cantwell at center, passed the ball over Thumser's head behind the goal line.

Drake

The following week Drake called at Francis Field and took the long end of a 31 to 7 score. From the Piker standpoint, the game was the most disastrous of the season. The badly crippled Red and Green machine seemed at times to have forgotten the rudiments of tackling. But from the spectator's viewpoint, the game was enlivened by the wonderful playing of Boelter, Drake's All-Valley halfback. Time and time again he pulled off long runs through the entire Piker team. He showed an uncanny ability to pick holes, scoring three touchdowns and being indirectly responsible for the rest.

Thumser and Greene stepped into the limelight with their brilliant defensive game and saved Washington from a worse defeat by constantly backing up the line. They were the only men who seemed to be able to bring their man down.

The only Washington touchdown came as the result of a Drake fumble, which Hutton recovered on Drake's thirty-five yard line. Three line plunges and a fifteen-yard run by Thumser placed the ball four yards from Drake's goal line. Here the visitors held for three downs, but on the fourth attempt a forward pass from Thumser to Lyle carried the ball over. After this score, Drake went through the Pikers almost at will, wide end runs and brilliant open field running by Boelter resulted in five touchdowns for Drake. The visitors kicked only one goal after touchdown out of five attempts.

Ames

The Pikers lost the next game of the season to Ames at Ames, 13 to 0, after an exceedingly hard fought game. The teams seemed to be evenly matched, but the breaks were against the Pikers. The first Ames touchdown was well deserved, coming as it did in the first half after a long series of line bucks. The second touchdown, however, was of the fluke variety. With but a few minutes of play left in the first half, Edkins, Ames' tackle, broke through the Piker line and blocked Thumser's punt. The ball rebounded to the Piker one-yard line, where the Ames man recovered it. Here the Piker line stiffened and held for three downs. On the fourth down, however, Ames succeeded in pushing the pigskin over, and Roberts kicked the subsequent goal.

Washington came back full of fight in the second period, and kept the ball continually in the Cyclones' territory, but were never quite able to push it over for a counter. Cantwell and Thumser starred for the Pikers. Buddy broke through the line frequently to throw the opposing backs for losses, while Baldy played his usual stellar game on both offense and defense. Captain Wolters and Edkins stood out prominently among the Ames men by their exceptionally good playing.

Grinnell

When the Washington team travelled to Grinnell the following week, they were minus the services of Thumser, Captain Denny, Kurrus, and several other regulars. As a result, the Piker team was forced to accept the short end of a 16 to 0 score.

In the first half, the crippled Piker team played a great defensive game, and held the Pioneers to only one touchdown in this period. This score came as the climax of a long march down the field by Grinnell, which was stopped when the Pikers held for three downs under the shadow of their goalposts. With one yard to go, Smith carried the ball over on the fourth down for the first Grinnell score.

In the second half the Pikers weakened somewhat, and Grinnell was able to score a touchdown and a field goal in this period, boosting their total of points to 16. Only once in the second period were the Pikers in position to score, but this chance was lost when Greene's try for goal from the forty-yard line failed of its mark.

The outstanding feature of the game was the way in which the inexperienced Piker line held their opponents. Six times during the contest they held Grinnell for downs within the ten-yard line. Claypool, Matthes, and Cantwell starred for Washington, while Norelius, Kingery and Fearing proved to be the Pioneer aces.

Missouri

In the annual classic of the Piker schedule, Missouri downed Washington at Columbia by the score of 27 to 0. As in the Grinnell game, Washington held their opponents to a single touchdown in the first half, but in the last half Missouri's weight, strength, and reserve material made itself felt. Fight alone, of which the Pikers displayed plenty, was not sufficient to hold the powerful Tigers, who piled up three touchdowns in the second half.

The rejuvenated Tigers, shaken by the defeat they had received from Oklahoma, uncovered a forward passing game that could not be denied. Knight's passing was one of the features of the game. In addition to Knight, Bond showed himself to be an important part of the offensive punch of the Tiger team. For the Pikers, Thumser, Greene, and Volland were the particular stars. Baldy showed up well in his punting, while Greene shared honors with Knight in passing, and in addition played a brilliant defensive game. "Red" Volland proved to be one of the bulwarks of the Red and Green line.

The game was well attended by Washington rooters, although the chances of winning were conceded to be small. Nearly one thousand Piker fans made the trip to Columbia, while the entire Band and over sixty members of the Wrecking Crew were present in full regalia at the game.

Oklahoma

The season ended Thanksgiving Day, when Washington held Oklahoma to a scoreless tie. The result was practically a victory for the Piker team, since Oklahoma had previously defeated Missouri and had come to St. Louis highly touted and favored to win by a large score. However, the Pikers outplayed them during the major part of the contest and the game ended without either team having crossed the other's goal line. The game was played in a cold, drizzling rain, before a large crowd which had gathered for the home-coming celebration.

Both elevens were but once in position to score. Oklahoma's chance came in the first half, but it ended in nothing when the Pikers held them for downs on the eight-yard line. The Sooners never got the ball closer than the twenty-yard line after that. The Pikers' chance came after forward passes had advanced the ball to Oklahoma's twenty-yard line. Here Oklahoma held for three downs. On the fourth attempt, Schnaus dropped back to the thirty-two yard line for a place kick, but the attempt failed when the ball went wide of its mark. Practically the entire team played well in the game, with Matthes and Thumser standing out as the stars. Gragg, Cantwell, Schnaus, and Volland played brilliantly on the line.

The Oklahoma game saw the passage from Washington football of five Piker stars: Thumser, Matthes, Tancil, Fries, and Gould. Thumser and Matthes were two of the outstanding stars of the season, and the other men played good, steady games. It was indeed regrettable

AFTER a disastrous season in 1922, the Piker basketball team came back this year and played the best basketball Washington has seen since 1920. The team finished in fifth place in the Valley Conference, winning and losing eight games for a final percentage of .500.

The team was again coached by C. O. Applegran. Only two letter men returned for practice, but to these were added good material in Minner, Wagener, Cantwell, Lyle, Hutton, Quinn, Niess, and others. Minner proved to be the individual star of the Piker aggregation, finishing in second place in Valley individual scoring and winning a place on the second All-Valley team. Captain Thumser received honorable mention for the All-Valley team.

The season opened with two non-conference games, which were both lost. The first was with Illinois and the other with Concordia Seminary. These games were played before the Pikers had worked out their system and team play was lacking.

However, the Conference season was opened in fine style, the Pikers winning games from Oklahoma and Kansas Aggies on successive nights. Oklahoma was defeated 25-24 in a tightly contested game, the Sooners leading by a good margin at the end of the first half. The Aggies were forced to bow in defeat 21-13, although they also led at the end of the first period. Minner and Thumser were the Piker satellites in these games.

Kansas next visited the Piker stronghold and exhibited an unbeatable brand of basketball, defeating Washington 34-16. The Jayhawkers, who ultimately played through the season without a defeat, displayed the best basketball shown on the Piker court during the year. Their offense was flashy, but their guarding was sensational.

Minner Wagener Schnaus

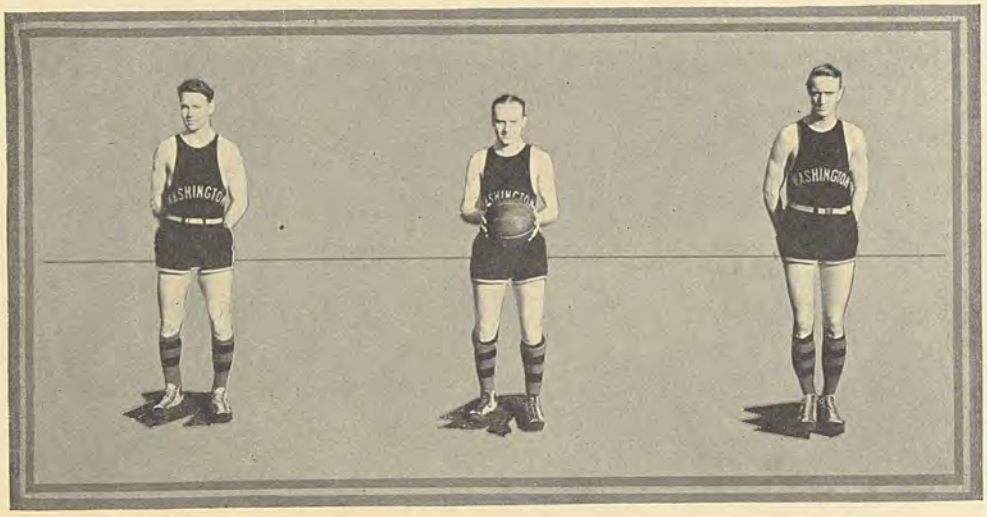

Minner was the only Piker who seemed to be able to elude the Kansas guards. Schnaus' guarding was one of the bright spots of the game.

The Pikers started their first road trip well, winning from the Kansas Aggies in an interesting game, 21 to 19, but were completely outclassed by Kansas in the next game and lost, 41 to 14. Kansas proved their superiority at all stages of the game.

Missouri was the next visitor and returned to Columbia the victor after a terrific struggle. The Pikers outplayed the Tigers during the major part of the conflict and several times during the second half they led. However, by a spurt in the final minutes of play the Tigers garnered enough points to win, 26 to 22. Minner was again the Piker individual star, but was pressed for honors by Wagener and Thumser.

The Pikers next played Oklahoma on their home court and again defeated them, this time by the score of 25 to 17. The outcome was never in doubt, the Piker offense piling up points at the very beginning of the game.

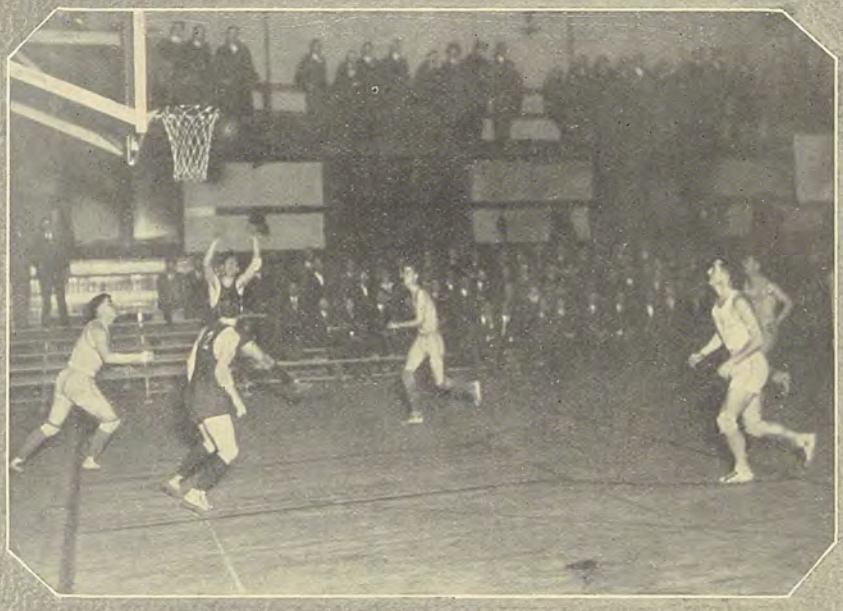

Two of the Iowa teams, Grinnell and Ames, next called at Francis Gym and were both trounced by Washington. Grinnell was defeated, 25 to 21, Minner scoring seventeen points. The first half was very close, the Pikers leading at the end of the first half by but one point. During the second half, Grinnell was held to one basket, but managed to score eight free throws. The Pikers stepped into third place in the Valley standings by winning from Iowa State, 24 to 18, the following night. Thumser starred for Washington in the second half, making four baskets, but Minner again led in individual scoring with fourteen points. Pinky Greene, Ames' All-Valley forward, played spectacularly and scored all but two of his team's points.

THE 1922 Missouri Valley Baseball Season ended with Kansas and Washington Universities in a tie for the championship, each team having a percentage of .750. But for the one disastrous northern trip, in which Bill Fries' arm went back on him, and games were dropped to Ames and Nebraska, the Pikers would undoubtedly have won the 1922 gonfalon.

The team opened the season in sparkling fashion, despite the fact that bad weather seriously abbreviated the training season. The material was the best that the Pikers had ever had, and with Davis coaching it looked like a certain Valley championship. However, luck in the form of Fries' bad arm intervened, and we were forced to be content with the tie.

Frank DeBolt pitched wonderful ball throughout the season, and carried the greater part of the hurling burden, winning six and losing but two games. Bill Fries pitched exceptionally well, also, until the time of the breakdown of his arm. Bill played left field while not pitching, and aided the team materially by his long distance clouting. Captain Shanley, who led the team in hitting with an average of .378, played his usual steady game at first, and finished the season in a whirlwind hitting rally after getting off to a bad start. Bobby Edgar was the fielding star of the team. His fielding was at all times sensational, although his hitting was not strong. Bobby turned professional at the close of school, going with the Cardinals, and finishing the season with Syracuse in the International League. Spaget Maguolo, captain-elect, played a sparkling game in center field and was second to Shanley in the batting averages.

The season was inaugurated in glorious style by a double victory over Ames at Francis Field. The first game was won, 2 to 1, and the second, 12 to 0. DeBolt allowed but seven hits in the first game and pitched remarkable ball in the pinches. In the third inning of the first game Frank fanned three men consecutively with the bases loaded. The Pikers scraped up but a meager three hits off Smith, but managed to make them all count, scoring two runs to win the game. The second game was one of the pitching gems of the season. Fries allowed but one hit and nary a walk; besides this, in the two games Bill managed to connect with four hits for a total of nine bases. The game turned out to be a walkaway for Washington, every Piker getting at least one hit, netting a total of twelve runs.

Oklahoma next invaded the Pikers' stronghold and was turned back with successive defeats by scores of 8 to 4 and 3 to 1. DeBolt pitched well for the Pikers, but Dolph, the Sooner pitcher, was wild, giving eight passes and hitting four men. The Saturday encounter proved to be more interesting, the Pikers winning a well-earned victory. Fries pitched a fine game, allowing but five hits and passing none. Bill would have had another shut-out to his credit but for a bad throw by the usually reliable Wyman.

The Pikers next easily turned back Milliken in a pair of uninteresting non-conference games. The first was won, 5 to 0, with Trautwein pitching, and the second, 8 to 3, with Scurlock, Fries, and DeBolt taking turns on the hurling mound

The Tigers of Missouri next called in St. Louis and were sent back to their lair with a pair of defeats and a tied game to their credit. The Friday game turned out to be a world-beater; the contest was called at the end of the tenth inning, with the score tied at four runs apiece. Fries and Ficklin both hurled beautiful games and were ably supported by their teammates. Maguolo stopped what seemed headed for a sure four-base clout in the tenth by the most wonderful catch seen on Francis Field last season. Mac, running at top speed, took a running dive at the sphere, which was coming far to his left, and above his head, and came down with the ball firmly held in his gloved hand.

The next day's double-header told a different tale. In the first encounter, DeBolt held the Tigers at his mercy for five innings while his teammates piled up a great lead. Scurlock was then sent in, and the massacre finally ended with the score 17 to 8 in the Pikers' favor. The second game, however, proved to be a good one; and it was only with DeBolt back in there pitching excellent ball that the Pikers won, 4 to 3. Frank received credit for both victories.

The 1922 Outdoor Season

THE decisive victories of Washington over her opponents in three dual track and field meets justifies the statement that the 1922 track season was a success, in spite of the fact that the team was able to score few points in the Valley Meet. The loss of Kremer, who had the year before accounted for eight points in the Conference Meet, and of other stars of that year, was keenly felt. However, the team strove valiantly to maintain the glory attained the previous year, and succeeded to a creditable extent.

The Rolla School of Mines bowed before the prowess of the Piker athletes in the first dual meet of the season, taking the small end of an 84 to 51 score. The meet was Washington's all the way. Thumser and Anderwert were the outstanding stars for the Pikers. Baldy placed in all five events in which he was entered, taking first in two events and second in the other three. Anderwert easily won his two events, the hundred and two-twenty yard dashes.

One week later, April 22, the Pikers met Drake University at Francis Field, defeating them 85 to 51. The Bulldogs came to St. Louis confident of victory, but were thoroughly outclassed by the Pikers. Both in track and field events, the Pikers showed marked improvement over their work of the previous week. The mile and half-mile relays featured the meet, Washington overcoming a lead to win both events. Joe Bier wiped out a ten-yard handicap to break the tape in the mile relay, while Anderwert closed up a five-yard gap to win for the Pikers in the half-mile event. Anderwert again won both of his dash events and Captain Thumser was again high point man with two firsts and three other places to his credit.

Washington made a clean sweep of the three dual meets by taking Grinnell into camp at Grinnell, Iowa, May 13, by the score of 77 to 59. Captain Thumser was again high point man, placing in five events, but Grinnell managed to capture a great majority ot the first places. However, with the few firsts, and because of the fact that the Pikers ran second and third in practically every event, Washington was able to annex the victory. Paulu, the star Grinnell sprinter, featured the meet with his work in the dash events.

So far as Washington was concerned, the Missouri Valley Conference Field and Track Meet at Lawrence, Kansas, May 26 and 27, was not as successful as it had been in the preceding year. However, Washington men, Thumser and Bier, placed second in an event each, with the result that, despite a small score, Washington finished far from the bottom of the list of entering schools.

Much credit is due Anderwert, who, as Washington's lone entry in the Drake Relays at Des Moines, Iowa, April 28-29, took fourth place in the one hundred yard dash, out of a field of 32 entries from leading colleges and universities throughout the Middle West.

At the National Collegiate Track Meet, Stagg Field, Chicago University, Chicago, Illinois, June 14-15, Washington was for the first time in her history a participant. Only two men, Anderwert and Bier, were entered and although neither one placed in his event, each qualified in his preliminary heat. Considering the national character of this meet and the great number of entries in each events, such a showing is very creditable.

On May 6, at Francis Field, a Washington team, composed of men from both the Varsity and Freshman teams, overwhelmingly defeated all other entrants in the annual Municipal Meet of St. Louis. A week later Principia met defeat by a score of 71½ to 32½.

The 1923 Indoor Season

THE largest turnout in the history of indoor activities answered Coach Rider's call for track aspirants early in January. The outlook was very favorable with the return of practically all the veterans of the preceding year and the eligibility of many new men in the sophomore class.

Only two men were entered in the national indoor meet given by Chicago University in the middle of March. Ralph Blanchard, pitted against the best field of hurdlers in the country, took fourth place in the fifty-yard high hurdles. Joe Bier placed in the preliminaries to the 440-yard dash, but was unable to win a place in the final heat.

Washington University won fourth place in the annual Missouri Valley Conference indoor meet sponsored by the Kansas City Athletic Club with a total of thirteen points. Kansas, with 39 points, won the meet, and Nebraska, Kansas Aggies, Washington, and Missouri finished in the order named. The Aggies beat Washington out of third place by three points.

Ralph Blanchard was the individual star of the meet and placed the Pikers in the running with firsts in the fifty-yard high and low hurdles. Blanchard walked away from the field in the low hurdles, negotiating the distance in six seconds flat, and establishing a new Valley indoor record. In the high hurdles he came near a record, making the exceptionally good time of six and three-fifths seconds. Baldy Thumser accounted for two points by placing third in the low hurdles and Bill Bremser made the other point by a fourth in the fifty-yard dash. Fifteen Pikers were entered in the meet, and although several made creditable showings in the preliminaries, only these three men were able to place.

Kansas presented a very well balanced team and won handily, although they were pressed closely by the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

IT was the consensus of opinion at the close of the 1921 schedule that the 1921 tennis season had been the most successful year ever enjoyed by a Piker net team. Results showed that not only had the Varsity won that much coveted and always keenly contested Valley title, but it had also competed successfully in dual meets against the strongest universities in the central west, scoring wins in such a decisive manner as to leave no doubt of the superiority of the Red and Green.

The 1922 team, however, proved to be even stronger than its predecessor. The Piker netsters came through their entire schedule unbeaten. They scored wins with regularity over their strongest opponents, and upheld their reputation of being the strongest team in the central west by trouncing Illinois, one of the present co-holders of the Big Ten title. To bring the season to a glorious finish, the Red and Green team traveled east in quest of greater honors for its Alma Mater, and, by virtue of its great record in the National Collegiate tourney at Philadelphia, attracted nation-wide attention, and established itself firmly in the National Collegiate Tennis Ranks. The Varsity net team has made a more enviable showing, and has done more to place its Alma Mater in the calcium than any Red and Green squad has ever done.

The 1922 season was scheduled to begin on May 3. On that day, Oklahoma University came to the Francis Field Courts to engage the Pikers, but inclement weather in the form of the well-known J. Pluvius interfered and necessitated the postponement of the match.

The initial match of the season then saw the team engaged in a dual meet with Milliken University at Decatur, Illinois. During the one-day stand at Milliken, May 12, three matches were played, and Washington, performing in an aggressive manner, registered a clean sweep. Although the season was still in its infancy, the Red and Green displayed good orthodox form, giving an indication of the potential punch which they were to exert later on. The playing of the blond Piker captain, Wray Brown, was the outstanding feature.

From Decatur, the team went to Champaign for a two-day dual meet with the Illini. The Indians presented an evenly-balanced, well-coached team which had prepared intensively for this invasion, hoping thereby to avenge the two defeats suffered at the hands of the Pikers the previous year. Although the Pikers got off to a bad start, and in general performed in a manner far below standard on the first day, they exhibited strong recuperative powers the next day. By winning a majority of the matches played that day, they brought the meet to a successful termination with a total of 7 points out of a possible 12. Captain Brown and Kammann performed in their usual brilliant manner, while Barnes and Sauselle tightened in the pinches to aid in pushing over the victory, thus keeping up the unbroken record of wins.

On May 26-27, the team, composed of Captain Brown, Kammann, and Barnes, journeyed to Lawrence, Kansas, for the annual Missouri Valley Conference Meet. Although Washington had won the title the preceding year, it was soon evident that the competition this year was keener than ever before, for all but two of the Valley schools were represented by strong teams, and the Oklahoma team, the most bitter rival of the Red and Green, was stronger than ever before in its history. In the singles, Brown won his way to the finals, but there suffered unexpected defeat at the hands of Parks of Oklahoma.

In the doubles event, however, Brown and Kammann, the stellar Washington doubles pair, battled their way to the ultimate round by disposing of Kansas, Missouri, Kansas Aggies, and Nebraska, and were slated to play Oklahoma in the finals. Admittedly, the outlook was gloomy for the Pikers when Oklahoma, playing almost unbeatable tennis, won the first set, and required only one more to become the undisputed Valley Champions. At this stage, the Washington pair flashed some beautiful tennis, winning the second set, and they continued their brilliant play to win the third set, and the doubles championship. As a result, the Pikers and Sooners will share the Conference title for 1922.

The National Intercollegiate Tournament

The remarkable record made by the Red and Green netsters throughout the last two years now led to the decision on the part of the Pikeway institution to send them east for the National Intercollegiate Championship at Philadelphia. This invasion of the east by Captain Brown and Kammann marked the first step by Washington into the rarified atmosphere of national competition. On June 26 the tourney, with an entry list of 68 players, began. The entries represented 26 universities located all over the United States, from California to Maine and from Texas to Michigan.

Arising from obscurity, the name of Washington was soon on the lips of all. Captain Brown, of Washington, in the opening round disposed handily of Hastings of Williams, while Kammann was defeating Captain Harold Taylor, of the Princeton team, and former National Junior Champion, in a match in which the Piker entry had not been conceded a chance. Brown and Kammann, "the ebony bronchos from Washington U. of St. Louis," as they were now being dubbed, next scored wins over Emerson, of Columbia, and Tremaine, of Massachusetts Tech., respectively. It was predicted, however, that the string of victories of the Piker pair would be broken in the next round when Brown opposed Wheeler of Yale, and Kammann took on Greene of Southern California, two highly touted players who had already made their reputations in the Intercollegiate ranks. But at the end of the day's play the Pikers had again proved their superiority, and again the dope was confounded.

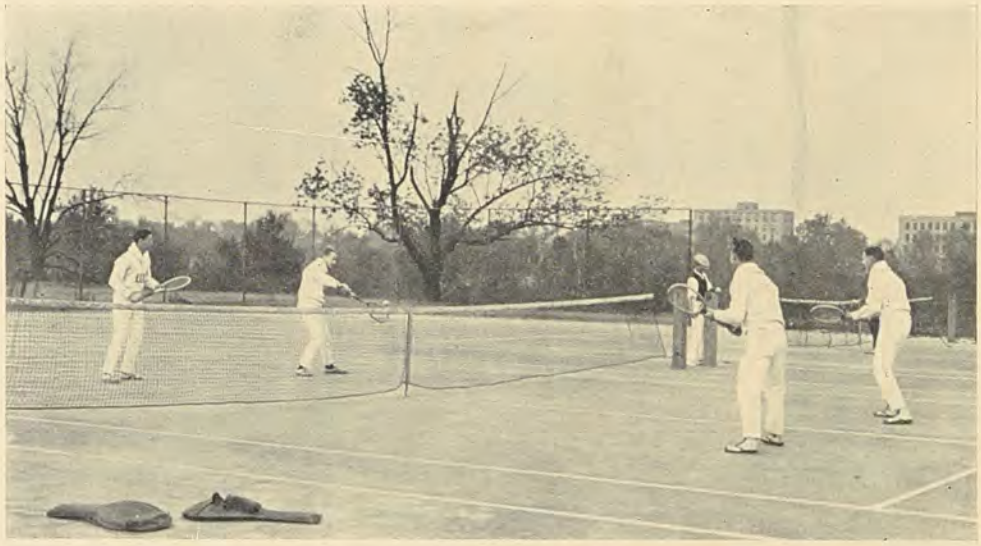

On the following day, however, Kammann, after a hard match, finally met his Nemesis in Captain Duane of Harvard, but Brown continued his wonderful playing, and avenged the defeat of his team-mate by trimming Jim Davies, of Leland Stanford. Then Brown, after a never-to-be-forgotten match, defeated Wesbrook of Michigan, and entered the final round. Washington and Yale were to play for the Intercollegiate singles title of the United States. The Piker Captain was thus instrumental in broadcasting the name of Washington over the country, and the name of our Alma Mater, hitherto an unknown athletic factor in the east, was now being mentioned by all.

At this point fate intervened to the detriment of the Pikeway, and, in the opinion of the majority of the critics, ruined the chances of the Red and Green for the National Championship. The final match was played on the soggy grass courts of the Merion Cricket Club after an all-morning rain had thoroughly soaked the courts. Captain Brown was unable to hit his stride on the slippery turf courts, and was forced to bow in defeat before Williams of Yale, after a game but ineffective fight. As it was, the Yale player's chop strokes were all well adapted and effective on the wet grass, whereas Brown's game and strokes, being suited more to hard courts, were bound to suffer, and did suffer. The general belief could not be kept down after the final match that the result might have been different had the courts been in their normal, dry condition. In the doubles, Kammann and Brown trimmed Georgetown University, but suffered a serious lapse of form against Oklahoma, losing to this team, whom they had defeated only a few weeks before for the Valley doubles championship.

Washington is now nationally known on account of its tennis teams, and its excellent showing in the face of strenuous opposition. Wray Brown, in going to the finals, and Karl Kammann, in making his way to the fourth round, defeated some of the best collegiate players in the country. As a result of their showing in the Intercollegiate ranks, Brown was placed second and Kammann sixteenth in the National Collegiate rankings. Brown and Kammann were ranked seventh in the doubles. By virtue of his record in matches throughout the middle west during the summer of 1922, Brown was ranked twentieth among all the players in the United States.

Coach Johnson, Helbing, Schlosstein, Smith, Closs, Eilers
Ulrich, Mare, Wienecke, Mudd (Captain), Hutton, Fernich

Entering this year for the first time an unknown and untried field, Washington swimmers, under the leadership of Captain Bob Mudd, performed in a highly meritorious manner. Despite the defeat by the University of Illinois early in the season, the Red and Green came back strong, defeating both Principia and the Kansas Aggies easily. The victory over the Aggies is significant when it is remembered that only the preceding week, the Kansas lads had humbled the representatives of Nebraska University, the only other school in the Missouri Valley Conference which now maintains a swimming team. Valley Champions then is the claim made for the Piker swimming team.

On February 24, before a capacity audience in the Wilson Pool, Washington bowed in defeat before a well coached and experienced team from Illinois. The Red and Green boys had been practically uncoached for almost two months before the meet. The 54-13 score indicates somewhat the power of Illinois, who, in addition to being more experienced in the swimming game, had the added advantage of having a complete entry in each event. Despite the one-sided score, the match was not lacking in its interest to Washington, for it gave evidence of the work being done in other universities and colleges, thereby setting a goal for the swimmers to work toward. The feature event of the meet was the plunge for distance by Captain Taylor, of the Illini, who made sixty yards in 18 seconds, within one-fifth of a second of the present "Big Ten" record.

Vincent B. Johnson, the new swimming coach, arrived the day before the Illinois meet. Coach Johnson is the holder of "Big Ten" records in the 40, 100, and 220-yard swims, which he established in 1915 and 1916 while he was a student at Northwestern University.

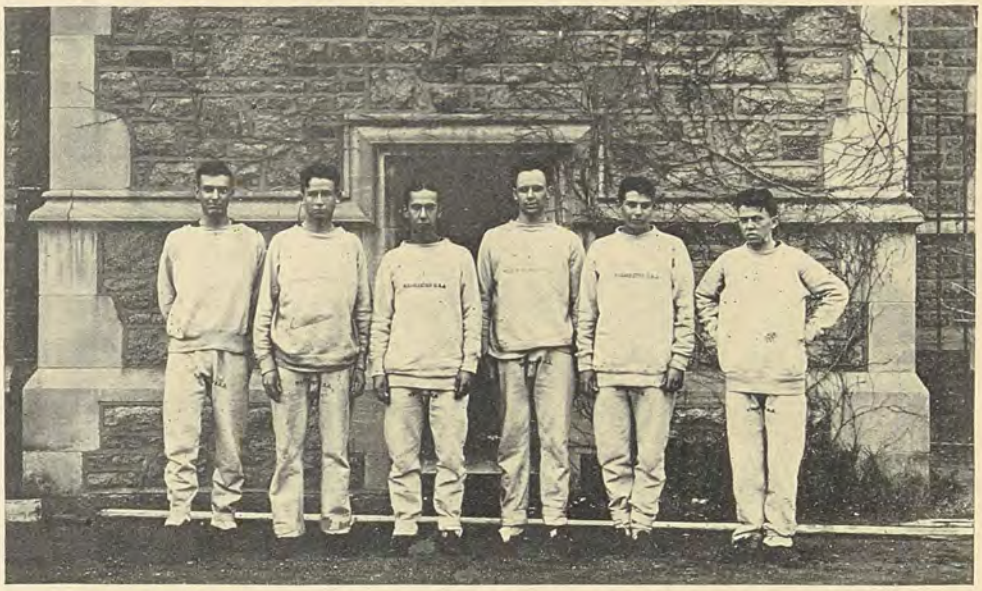

On Feb. 27, the team, led by Coach Johnson, experienced little difficulty in handing Principia a 44½ to 23½ defeat. The Pikers were easily the class of every event, excepting the sprints. In these events, Kimball of Principia was a consistent winner. The Principia star is one of the fastest swimmers in the state. To prove this, he swam the one hundred yard event

Capps, Tremlett, Quermann, Schulz, Schwartz, Ralls

THIS year marked the first year that letters were awarded in cross country running. Capps, Tremlett, and Ralls were awarded the first letters in this sport, as a result of their work in the three dual meets of the season and in the Valley meet. In addition to the above named men, the team was composed of Quermann, Schulz, Schwartz, and Williams. These men were chosen from the fifteen who answered Coach Summers' call for runners for the five mile course.

The first meet of the year was a dual one with Drake, which our men won by a score of 21 to Drake's 34. The race was held at Washington between the halves of the Drake game. The results were just reversed the following meet, when the Piker team travelled to Grinnell only to be beaten by the same score by which they had beaten the Bulldogs. The last dual meet of the year with with Missouri at Columbia. The Piker harriers, unaccustomed to the difficult Tiger course, finished with a score of 36 to Missouri's 19.

The Valley Conference Cross Country Meet was held at Washington on Armistice Day, November 11. Thirty-six athletes, representing six Valley schools, faced the starter. For the two laps around the track, the runners were well bunched, and continued so down Forsythe to Skinker. On the hill running from Forsythe to Clayton road the harriers scattered, with Seaton and Bierbaum of Ames, Hense of Kansas Aggies, Wilson of Kansas, and Capps and Tremlett of Washington, closely bunched and leading the field.

Turning into Forest Park, then down the bridle path and around the foot of Art Hill, the athletes strung out with Hense fighting the two Ames men, Seaton and Bierbaum, for the lead. On Forsythe Hill, leading from Skinker road to the Stadium, the Aggie runner pulled away from the Ames men and circled the track to the finishing point fifty yards ahead of Seaton. His time was 28 minutes, 30 seconds.

Seaton was followed over the finishing line by Bierbaum. The next to finish were two Kansas University men, Wilson and Willey, after whom two more Ames men, McIntire and Brown, came in. The lowest Washington score was made when Capps crossed the line in eighth place. He was closely followed by Tremlett of Washington, who beat out Pittinger of Missouri for ninth place by a gallant finish.

The last Ames man finished eleventh, thus giving them the meet with a low score of 29. Their closest competitor was Kansas with 73. Although Hense of Kansas Aggies won the race, his team mates finished so far in the rear that their combined score was 85, which gave them third place. Missouri's 89 was only two points lower than Washington's score, while Nebraska's 98 brought up the rear.

Hense created quite a bit of amusement among the few on-lookers by his appearance. He showed up for the race with his ears strapped to his head by a piece of adhesive tape which ran from ear to ear around the back of his head. Speculation was rife as to what the purpose of the trick was. However his headgear was forgiven when he came through the gate fifty yards in the lead.

Cross country at Washington should enjoy a good season next year. Although Schultz, Tremlett, and Ralls will be lost through graduation, Savignac, Cox, and Carroll of the freshman team have shown class in work-outs against the varsity and should be able to step into the shoes of the men who leave.

Boxing

Although both the Rolla and the Ames boxing meets were lost, the 1923 boxing season was far from a failure. Coach Albert Graff, who was again in charge of the Piker battlers, had his men in such shape that only a forfeited match in the heavyweight division won for Ames when the two schools met. In fact, three Piker scrappers won their matches against the Cyclones, thus gaining the first boxing letters ever awarded at Washington. The men who won this honor were Edward Randall, Charles Dawson, and John Morse. Victory in the Rolla meet did not entitle the victor to a letter, as Rolla is not a Valley school.

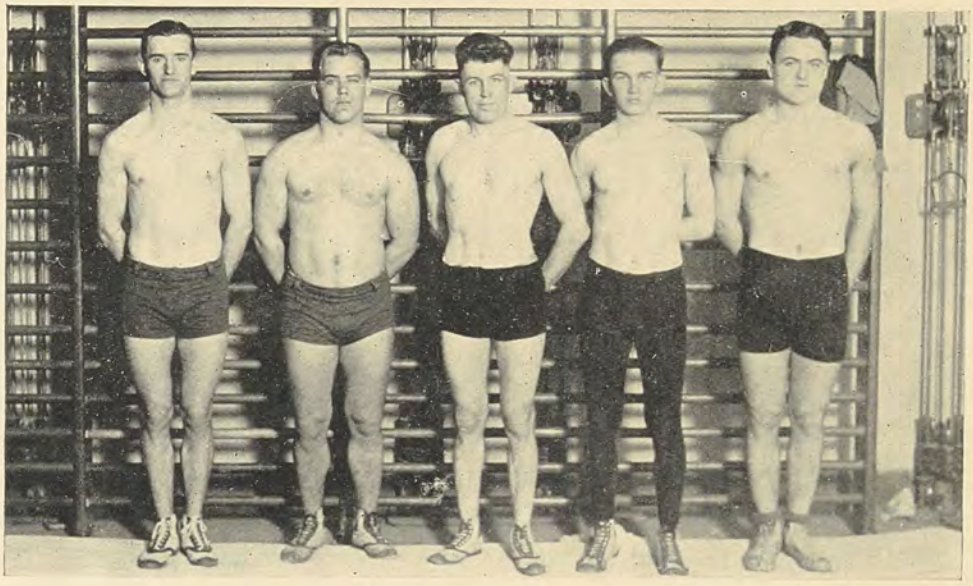

The meet with Rolla went to the Miners with a score of 4 to 2. The meet was held at Francis Gym and was very well attended. It marked the first opportunity for Piker fans to see their battlers in action, and they turned out in force. Joe Senturia opened the meet with a Washington victory when he outboxed Doster, the Miner entry in the bantamweight division. Gordon Brownlee lost to Walls in the 125-pound class after starting out strong and outpointing his opponent in the first round. The closest match of the evening was that between Goldman and Stogsdill. At the end of the three rounds, the judges disagreed, so an extra period was fought, after which the decision was awarded to Stogsdill. In the fastest encounter of the evening, Eddie Randall lost the decision to Kessler of Rolla. The real class of the evening was furnished in the 158-pound encounter, in which Captain Ludwig won over Letts of Rolla. Ludwig's assaults to his opponent's midsection

Wrestling, as a recognized sport with regularly scheduled intercollegiate meets, was inaugurated this year on the Pikeway. Three meets were held during the year and the team was under the guidance of Al Wasem, formerly lightweight champion of the world. Coach Wasem is now himself staging a comeback in the wrestling game in an attempt to regain his title. In his recent mat campaign he has won seven without losing a single contest. The ex-champion proved his worth as a coach in developing the Piker matmen to an exceedingly high level, considering that wrestling is a comparatively new sport at Washington. Under Coach Wasem's guidance and with the excellent material in the freshman class, Washington University should have a championship mat team within the next few years.

The season opened with a preliminary meet with the Rock Springs Athletic Club. The athletic club team was coached by Gus Eisel, an old rival of Coach Wasem. The Pikers won, taking four out of the five matches. The first bout was lost by Washington when Decker of Rock Springs, threw Thurston Ely in straight falls. The Pikers then came back and won the next four in succession, Brewer, Franz, Schettler, and Captain Meeker scoring for the Piker team. Brewer won a decision over Salvatore Avellone, who last year wrestled under Washington's colors.

In the first regular intercollegiate meet of the season, Washington lost to the Rolla Miners, two to four. The matches were all hard fought and the Pikers put up a good exhibition against the more experienced Miners. The evening was opened with a win for Washington when Earl Brewer triumphed over Kennedy after a gruelling struggle. Brewer lost the first round, but so severely punished his opponent in the second that he was unable to return for a third fall. Fischer, conceding ten pounds of weight,

After a very successful season the "frosh" basketball team disbanded and awaits the calling of the Varsity squad next fall. Too much cannot be said in favor of this year's team—it was the best in three years. It has defeated almost every team it has met by a one-sided score. Its success is due to the careful coaching it received at the hands of Coach Davis and the excellent work of "Pi" Reid and Cox at guards. Pete Wetzel and Seago were the high point men on the team and could always be counted on to cage a number of baskets. Hoyt, the tall center, usually got the jump and did some excellent playing. Above all, the team worked as a unit, individual play being the exception rather than the rule. These men are expected to combine with the remaining men of this year's team to furnish a strong team for Washington next year.

Freshman Football

FOOTBALL at Washington University, according to Coach Rider, is now in a process of development which will give us teams of championship caliber within a few years. To build a powerful football machine, the material for the framework must be found and this material developed. This is the function of the freshman squad. It is there that the material is assembled and put into shape to step into the varsity ranks the following year. The 1922 freshman football squad fulfilled this function very well, for it was one of the largest and best in the history of the school. The quality of the material was far better than in previous years, and the men showed an aptitude for learning under the expert tutelage of Coach Davis.

Games with St. Louis high schools resulted in victories for the the men showed an aptitude for learning under the expert tutelage of best prep teams in the Middle West, that could make the freshmen take the short end of the score. The frosh team had a line which was rated by many to be as good as that of the varsity. Many of these men can be counted upon to fill up the vacancies left by graduation and to greatly strengthen next year's varsity line. In addition, the 1922 yearlings showed many men who should prove good material for the varsity backfield next year.

Finals

Tau Kappa Epsilon, 37 . . . . . Sigma Nu, 19

Tau Kappa Epsilon, with a freshman all-star team, won the inter-fraternity basketball championship and earned a leg on the inter-fraternity trophy by beating the Sigma Nus in the finals, 37 to 19. The T. K. E.s had a fairly easy time in the tournament, outclassing all their opponents, except the Phi Delts, by great margins. After a hard struggle they triumphed over Phi Delta Theta in the semi-finals by the score of 21 to 19. Sigma Nu earned their right to play in the finals by defeating the Sigma Chis in the semi-final round, 12-8.

Panhellenic Baseball

Standing: Monson, LF; Fitzwater, SS; Herman, Utility; Thym, P; Schlueter, 2B; Penney, CF; Bussen, C; Berger, 3B
Kneeling: Petrie, 1B; Huey, RF

PSI DELTA, the Panhellenic Baseball Champions of 1922, won their first leg on the Drosten Trophy by virtue of defeating successively the teams of Sigma Alpha Mu, Sigma Nu, Kappa Alpha, and Theta Xi. Owing to the late start of the tournament in the spring of 1922, the semi-finals and finals were played off after school opened in the fall. Psi Delta emerged victorious as a result of good hitting plus superb pitching, and despite a somewhat erratic infield. Theta Xi, eliminated in the finals, was perhaps the strongest contender. However, both Kappa Alpha and Sigma Chi showed early evidence of considerable strength and it is indeed regrettable that the latter's elimination was due to a forfeiture. The score of the final game was Psi Delta, 7, Theta Xi, 5.

The trophy, which is a large shield, was presented some eleven years ago by W. G. Drosten, and is to be the property of the team winning it three times in succession. So far, two fraternities, Kappa Alpha and Theta Xi, have each won it twice successively, but each has failed in its final effort. Up to the present time the only fraternities that have won the trophy are Kappa Alpha, Theta Xi, Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, and Psi Delta.

Panhellenic Handball

GOLDMAN FLOUN

SIGMA Alpha Mu's handball team, composed of Sam Floun and Sam Goldman, holds the Panhellenic handball championship for this year by virtue of having defeated the T.K.E.s in the finals of the tournament. The Tekes were represented in the tournament by Val Henrichs and Edward Selden.

The victors reached the finals by trimming Sigma Alpha Epsilon in easy style in the semi-finals. The Tekes disposed of the Theta Xis in their bracket for the honor of meeting the S.A.M.s for the championship.

The final match opened with a victory for the S.A.M.s in the first game, 21-5. The eventual victors were playing smoothly together, and showed good form and plenty of fight throughout this game. Floun especially showed himself to be one of the best handball players in school by making a number of pretty "kills." In the second game the Tekes came back with some hard playing which boosted their score quite a bit, but the excellent teamwork and good playing of the S. A.M.s was not to be denied, and the game ended with the score 21-12 in favor of Floun and Goldman. Victory in these two games gave Sigma Alpha Mu the match and the Panhellenic handball championship.

Medic Baseball League

Freshman Medical Class, Champions

One of the most interesting activities at the School of Medicine in the spring is baseball. The four classes have organized a league, in which annually they play at regular intervals to decide the championship.

The much coveted prize is a trophy that was donated last year by popular subscription among the students. The team of the class of 1925, of which Charles Metz is the captain, won the trophy last year and will hold it till the completion of the 1923 season. Should a class win the cup three years in succession they will get permanent possession of it.

The games are played on the diamonds in Forest Park, opposite the school, semi-weekly until the schedule is completed. The supervision of the contests is intrusted to the senior representatives on the Student Council Athletic Committee. W. B. Beche and T. L. Hawkins were in charge last year.

The league was organized as a means of creating better school and class spirit and has been entirely successful. Rivalry between the classes is intense and the teams play an exceptionally good grade of baseball. Winning the baseball championship is the greatest honor that a class at the Medical School can achieve.

Athletics

Interscholastic Track

Encouraged by the success which greeted the first Annual Mississippi Valley Interscholastic Track and Field Meet in 1921, Coach Rider scheduled the second Annual Meet for May 20, at Francis Field. Three hundred and seventy-five athletes, representing some twenty-nine contesting schools, answered the coach's call for entries. This was an increase of about seventy-five over the first year's number of entries. The farthest entry came from Scott High School, Toledo, Ohio.

An innovation at this meet was the elimination of the original class method of running the events. Whereas the first year the competing schools had been divided into two classes—Class A, for schools with an enrollment over three hundred and fifty, and Class B, for schools with an enrollment under that figure—this year all schools entered in the same class.

Cleveland High School, of St. Louis, won the meet with a total of 25 points. Soldan High succeeded in gaining 16⅔ points for second place. The difference between the Soldan and Cleveland score fails to indicate how close the meet was. It was not until the last events had been run that Cleveland was assured of victory.

By virtue of winning the meet, Cleveland gained possession for one year of the silver cup donated by the Washington University Engineers. The cup is to become the permanent possession of the school first winning it three times. Soldan High already has one leg on the cup. Cleveland also gained permanent possession of a silver loving cup given to the winning team each year by the University.

The feature event of the meet was the running of the half-mile relay, in which the team from Scott High showed that it merited the long trip to the meet by winning a very close race. Victory in this race gave that school possession of a special cup given for the relay, while each member of the team received a gold medal.

The individual awards were well worth striving for. First place earned the individual a gold medal, second place a silver medal, while third and fourth places were rewarded with gold bronze and silver bronze medals respectively.

Several records were broken at the meet. New marks were established in the half-mile relay, javelin-throw, shot-put, discus-throw, broad jump, and pole vault.

This year's meet will be held on May 12.

Interscholastic Basketball

THE third annual Mississippi Valley Interscholastic Basketball Tournament, sponsored by Washington University, was held March 15, 16 and 17 at Francis Gymnasium. Thirty-six teams were entered, comprising the largest and best field in the history of the tournaments.

The team representing the high school of Mt. Carmel, Illinois, won the championship by nosing out Cleveland High School in the finals, 21 to 19. Mt. Carmel played an exceptionally high brand of basketball throughout the tournament. In the final game they overcame a seven point handicap in the second half to win.

West Frankfort and Farina, beaten by Cleveland and Mt. Carmel, respectively, in the semi-finals, fought it out for third place as a preliminary to the final game, West Frankfort winning after a hard struggle, 26 to 25. Lee, the West Frankfort center and captain, was their ace and the greatest factor in their work all through the tournament.

By winning the tournament, Mt. Carmel won a permanent cup donated by the University and earned a leg on the Leacock Trophy, as well as receiving individual gold basketballs for each member of the squad. Mt. Carmel, Belleville, and Webster Groves now each have one leg on the trophy. The runners-up, Cleveland, received silver basketballs, while West Frankfort was awarded a silver loving cup for third place.

The tournament was intensely contested from the first round through the finals. Most of the city and county high schools fell by the wayside in the opening round, Cleveland being the only one to stay in the running.

Coaches

Miss Williams

During the past year the standard of the Department of Physical Education for Women has been raised and a keen interest in sports of all kinds has been aroused through the efforts of Miss Kate Williams and Miss Elizabeth Childs, who have the friendship and hearty co-operation of every one in the Department.

There have been several important innovations in the course, chief among which was the introduction of the regulation uniform for gymnasium and all athletic work. Also, at the instigation of the coaches, the point system in sports was revised, almost all of the sports being made major ones, except dancing, horseback riding, canoeing, and hiking, which comprise the Outing Club. Each girl is limited to three major teams a year, and one sport in the Outing Club. This enables more girls to participate in sports, formerly a few girls "made" everything and the others did not have a chance. It is much better to have all the sports on the same basis because it makes the point system fairer.

A new and interesting class, organized by Miss Williams this year, is the Coaches' Training Class, in which all girls who were interested were given instruction and practical experience in coaching. In this way the girls receive training without attending a special Physical Education School.

The regular gymnasium regime of exercises, drill, and folk-dancing was carried out the first semester, but second semester work was optional, the electives being sports, swimming, playground work, and dancing, giving each girl an opportunity to specialize in her favorite branch of gym work.

The comradie and good feeling that exists between instructor and pupil was shown by the election of Miss Williams and Miss Childs to "Peppers" and "Cleats." Both Miss Williams and Miss Childs are graduates of the Chicago Normal School of Physical Education, the former completing her work in 1914, and the latter in 1920; both came to Washington in 1921, and we were indeed fortunate in having them again this year.

Virginia Gorin
Singles Champion

During the past year tennis has become a more important and more popular sport for women than formerly. Two courts, west of the girl's gym, have recently been completed for the exclusive use of the girls. This is a great help because formerly the women had to use the men's courts, which are excellent, but usually crowded. Now that they have their own courts they are sure of a place to play and they take a greater interest in the game. W. A. A. made tennis a major sport this year, and a greater number of girls participated in the tournament than ever before. Virginia Gorin became champion in the singles when she defeated Catherine Soraghan. In the doubles Olive Huey and Elizabeth Atwood were champions, Dorothy Specht and Elizabeth Lord being runners up.

The Dirge, the University comic magazine, consisting largely of jokes, humorous sketches, and burlesque satires, appeared for the first time in October, 1919, under the editorship of J. Walter Goldstein. Since then it has steadily improved until it now maintains a firmly established place in the esteem of the student body.

The Eliot, for eight years the literary publication of Washington University, aims to act as a medium for the expression of undergraduate talent. However, contributions from faculty and alumni are also accepted. In spite of difficulties attendant upon the editing of a magazine of such a nature, The Eliot, with the valuable aid of its business manager, has managed to survive, to sustain its self-confidence and to experiment. The contents of each number, usually of a high order of merit, consist of short stories, fantastic and realistic, poetry in the forms of free verse and sonnets, sketches and critical essays. It is interesting to note that the 1922 issue of "The Poets of the Future," a college anthology, contained four poems written by Washington University students. These poems were originally published in The Eliot.

The Devil's Disciple

THE presentation of the Thyrsus Annual at the Odeon on the evening of May 4th marked its return to the serious type of drama. The vehicle chosen was George Bernard Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," a travesty on melodrama, a picture of life seen through a refractory temperament, in which is subtly combined popular drama for the masses with satire for the more erudite.

To transport an audience from memories still fresh with last year's "Pomander Walk," made vivid through the verve and fascination of its titian-haired ingenue to one of Shaw's most characteristic bits of irony was no mean task. That it was accomplished with remarkable facility redounds greatly to the credit of Mr. William Carson, the director, and of his group of actors, who, in presenting the play, challenged not only the talents of the respective members of the cast, but also the intelligent appreciation of their audience.

As a drama, "The Devil's Disciple," the scene of which is laid at Saratoga, New York, during the days of the American Revolution, is a social thesis posed on a background of eighteenth century Puritanical orthodoxy and hurled in the face of religious hypocrites among whom immorality is represented as rioting behind a veil of quasi-virtuousness. The true star of a play, thus freighted with philosophy, keen-edged with thrusts of wit made delectable often by Shavian paradoxes nimble of phrase, may be said to be Shaw himself rather than the particular actor who happens to be playing the leading role.

The challenge to the ability of the actors fell most heavily to Robert Kissack, Jr., essaying the role of Richard Dudgeon, self-confessed ne'er-do-well, and to Laura Hinchman as Judith Anderson, a typical Shaw woman. Both parts which, in truth, because of their psychological complexity, demanded actors of tried skill and maturity, were played with sincerity and poise. Mr. Kissack was particularly fine in moments of biting irony, as in the opening of the play, when he enters among the assembled relatives, and in the comedy of the court scene. The crisis of the play in which Judith, in love with Richard, draws from him the confession that his altruism has been merely a pretext to mask his self-gratification, wherein an extremely fine interweaving of didacticism and emotional intensity is required to reveal the nuances of an almost perverted nature, though handled with less ease and finish, was dispatched with care and discretion. Miss Hinchman touched her best moment when torn between her awakened love nature and her conventional cold suppressed self, she succumbs gracefully to dilemmatic despair.

Palmer Hancock in the difficult part of the Pastor acted consistently well, while Lola Fuchs was successful in making Mrs. Dudgeon a creature of venomous virtue, the natural acridity of the character being vividly reinforced by her strong voice and forceful gestures.

Thyrsus One-Act Plays

ON the evening of November 7th, at the Wednesday Club, before a large audience, Thyrsus presented its first offering of the year in the form of three one-act plays. The productions, in each case, were marked by well-chosen casts, discerning direction, and excellent acting.

"Two Crooks and a Lady," as the title indicates, was melodramatic in tone. Warren Drescher as "the Hawk", and Jalien Shield, as his accomplice, caused all the excitement, but were outwitted by the clever Mrs. Simms-Vane, played by Edmonia Richmond. Reliance on the transmission of thought by the voice alone made her acting stand out most prominently. Carolyn Matthews, Ray Roberts and Deming Tucker, in lesser parts, played well and in tune with the spirit of the play.

Undoubtedly the most delightful part of the program appeared in that rollicking playlet, "The Very Naked Boy". To be sure the only naked part of the play proved to be the plot, but it mattered little to the audience who greeted the quick exchanges of reproach and remonstrance between the quarreling lovers with unmistakable signs of appreciation. Ann Kinnaird carried off her part with archness and vivacity while happily Charles Smith was quite a diverting foil. Fulfilling in part the promise shown last year, Hale Nelson as "He" displayed an ingratiating spontaneity, saving the play from "mushiness" by retaining with an assumed seriousness of youthful devotion an undercurrent of brisk incisive comedy.

"A Night at an Inn," the most pretentious piece of the evening, had the advantage of being acted by four of the most experienced members of the club. Unfortunately the big scene, in which the Priests of Klesh come to revenge the theft of the ruby, was somewhat marred by the unseemly mirth of the audience, who were evidently feeling the after-effects of the Walker farce. John Becker, as a dilapidated but still masterful gentleman; Warren Hagee, as the conscience-stricken Sniggers; Robert Kissack and Delmar Gray as two care-free sailors, proved equal to the demands of the play and gave the most finished performance of the evening.

"Snake Eyes," or "The Abducted Heiress," a play in three acts by S. Floyd Stewart and W. Emmet Glore, played to capacity houses in matinee and evening performances at Mary Institute, May 17.

The play, presented with all the melodramatic traditions intact, was in the form of a burlesque on the thrillers frequently seen on the stage and screen. The action centered about a precious document, which is found in the last scene to be a plan for a master still, that had been entrusted by the father of the heroine to her sweetheart, and had been stolen from him by a notorious gang of bootleggers. In the efforts to recover the paper the heroine is kidnapped and much gore is spilled to the soulful accompaniment of broken dishes and rattling washtubs, but it ends happily after the hero's rescue in the sweet embrace of the darling heroine and the stalwart hero, a scene to which the audience glowed with long awaited enjoyment.

Alice Clifford's playing of the heroine with the hunted look was indeed credible. The hero, Frank Carter, was played by Scott Ittner, who plied his devotions with true ardor. Sol Kohn made a relentless villain and showed his previous experience in cave man methods. Jalien Shield, as Phoebe, the blonde bewigged "baby vamp", and Hildred Russell as Cutie, the dusky siren, who picks her teeth with a butcher knife, were insidiously piquant bits of femininity. Walter Metcalfe was a staid, dignified father, while Elizabeth Hubbell, as the mother, hovered graciously in the background. The rest of the cast including Clifford Dunn, Walter Hellinger, Deming Tucker and Lee Meriwether, as the gangsters, Shirley Capps, doubling as a Dago and a butler, Allan McMath and Victor Scherman zealously assisted to make the play truly mellerdramatic.

The "meller" was received with vociferous applause and the audience endeavored to show their appreciation by the ceaseless fire of vegetables, fruit, and peanuts. The cast appreciated the peanuts, but the artillery became so heavy that it was necessary to stop the play three times while Business Manager Niemeyer pleaded for cessation.

His Model Wife

"HIS Model Wife," a three-act farce by Mr. William Carson, was presented by the students of English Three at the Church of Unity Auditorium on the evenings of March 20 and 21, before large audiences. The production, a novelty in campus dramatics, was entirely the work of the students of the class who revised the play, and directed all phases of the performance, including the making of scenery and costumes. Much of the smoothness with which the performance passed off may be attributed to the directorial skill of Miss Florence Walters, who served as the coach.

The play, which was markedly original in idea and execution, centered about the deception practiced by a temperamental young author upon his unsuspecting rural neighbors by having a waxen beauty act as his wife. With the idea of situation predominating over character, the dramatis personnae, all readily identified as well-known types with the exception of the part taken by Mr. Carson himself, were woven into a plot which in its suspense and mirth-provoking qualities kept the audience alternately on tip-toe of expectation and in gales of unforced laughter.

Fortunately the personnel of the class was such that the demands of each role were filled with surprising ease. Mr. Carson played Roy Burroughs with a naturalness that was received by the audience with considerable relish. Adele Eames stammered beautifully and acted with delightful freshness and unsophistication. Robert Kissack, as the author, was sarcastic and agitated even to the extent of hurling pillows about. Carol Kemerer as his sweetheart acted with care and good taste. As Malvina Seeds, the simpering hick, Florence Walters gave evidence of her close attention to detail. Even the eating of an apple under her management commanded breathless attention. Eleanor Becker as Effie Todd, the "powerful Katrinka" of Pleasantville, kept the audience in a continuous uproar, while Katherine Jane Judson, Louise Jamieson, Conrad Stuhlman, Chester Hart, Roswell Horwitz, Elizabeth Todd, Shirley Capps, and Adolph Pessel assisted in the general merry-making. A third performance was given on March 27.

English Six One-Act Plays

Otro Dia

In the presentation of three original one-act plays at the Artists' Guild on the evening of February 14th before a capacity house, the students of English Six, a class in playwriting, instituted in September, 1922, by Mr. William Carson, achieved a marked degree of success. The plays, "The Woods-Colt," by W. Emmet Glore; "Absalom," by Jessie E. Chamberlain, and "Otro Dia," by Mrs. Marguerite S. Pyle, were awarded cash prizes of $50.00, $25.00 and $10.00 in the order mentioned. The committee judging the plays consisted of Mrs. R. A. Kissack, Prof. R. F. Jones, and Mr. Richard L. Stokes. Honorable mention was given to "As It Was in the Beginning," by Florence Walters, and "Outside," by Lola Fuchs.

In a curtain speech, Mr. Carson explained that the plays, which had been selected from thirteen originally submitted to the committee, were written with the advice and co-operation of the entire class. He also stated that the entire production of the plays was the work of the members of the English Six Class. The scenery was designed in the class work-shop and the plays were pre ented under the direction of the respective authors.

"The Woods-Colt," the scene of which takes place in a small town in Southern Illinois, dealt with a quarrel between grasping children over the will left by their father. The play based its success chiefly on vivid portrayal, opposition of character, and the tenseness of its swift-moving action.

"Absalom" and "Otro Dia" were largely plays in retrospect. Miss Chamberlain's play concerned itself with the theme of the prodigal son. Returning home pursued by the police officers the boy overhears his father expressing a desire for his return. He becomes conscience-stricken and leaves without making his presence known. The play presented a very good example of dramatic contrast. "Otro Dia" was a romantic tragedy of the triangular order, the chief characters being the lovers, a blind sculptor, and a toy-maker, and the villain who wrecks their happiness. The excellencies of the play lay in beauty of setting, emotional appeal, and technical finish.

"The Woods-Colt" was acted with splendid spirit by Arthur Krause, Gilbert Hyatt, Lola Fuchs, Florence Walters, Marguerite Pyle and Adolph Pessel. The leading roles in "Absalom" were carried by Delmar Gray and Florence Walters with their usual degree of effectiveness, and "Otro Dia" found worthy interpreters in Adolph Pessel, Jalien Shield, and John Becker.

To quote the Eliot: "The success attained by these plays marks the first step in the direction of expanded creative work on the campus. These plays have widened the scope of student activity, and in so doing have materially contributed to the growing consciousness of real university life and thought."

Romeo and Juliet

The Shakespeare Association of Washington University, following the successful performances of "As You Like It" and of "Twelfth Night," presented, on the evening of May 9th at Liggett Terrace, a third annual production, the tragedy of "Romeo and Juliet." For the first time male actors were employed, all the parts in the two previous productions having been assumed by women.

In adapting the play for outdoor production, the acting version was reduced to seventeen scenes; of the indoor scenes, four being omitted and the others transferred outdoors. Waits between scenes were eliminated by using the same set, that of Capulet's garden with its balcony, throughout, except for the introduction of a funeral vault in the final scene; and also by merely extinguishing the footlights to indicate changes of scene. In spite of the frequent noises caused by passing automobiles and other occasional disturbances, the efforts of the cast aided by the natural beauty and moon-lit glamor of the setting, succeeded in keeping throughout the interest of the audience in the unfoldment of the tragedy.

The outstanding acting of the evening was undoubtedly done by Florence Walters as Juliet and Warren Hagee as Romeo. Indeed, Miss Walters' playing in what might be considered her most ambitious role deserves special consideration.

It is probable that never before has a performance more intelligently conceived, more finely executed, and more artistically appealing been presented on a Washington University stage than the Juliet of Florence Walters. This was no nervous angular sketch by an ambitious college girl, but an impersonation which made of her Juliet a creature, mature, thrilling with spiritual vitality, and replete with vivid suggestions of the amorous Francesca, of the ecstatic Verochka, of her tragic Nan, and even of the melancholy Jacques, former roles to which she has given the force and conviction of her presence. The vehement elemental infatuation to which the native sensuousness of the adolescent Italian girl found sublimated expression was handled with a Slavic fire particularly evident in the forlorn tremor and passionate frenzy of the Potion Scene, yet made the more affecting by a dexterous commingling of a simple Greek chastity of spirit with a characteristic English restraint and unshaken poise. Perhaps it was this same ripeness and serenity of character that marred somewhat the effectiveness of her playful scene with the Nurse and the moment when she severs the bonds of childhood. Nevertheless, with the vibrant lyricism of her voice, in itself an eloquent denotement of the sensitivity and power of her art, she did invest the character with more than one attribute of a distinct impressive personality. For a finer representation one must look toward the older and more experienced upholders of the classic traditions on the professional stage.

Greater praise can hardly be given to Warren Hagee than the statement that his Romeo was in no way eclipsed by Miss Walters' Juliet. Melancholy, ardent, impulsive, yet not overdoing, he proved most effective in the Balcony Scene and later when informed of his banishment.

The remaining roles all received excellent treatment, especially in the interpretation of the text. Arthur Schneff made good use of his opportunities in the delicate imagery of the Queen Mab speech. Delmar Gray as Friar Lawrence, Charlotte Coombe, as the comic, garrulous nurse, and Paul Reed, masterful in the denunciation scene, were all highly satisfactory. The minor roles are all to be commended for the evident painstaking care with which they were handled.

Mention should also be made of the Minuet dancers and the singers of the Shakespearian lyrics, who furnished variety during the intermissions.

Much of the thanks for the success of the play is due to the experienced judgment and excellent direction of Dr. W. R. Mackenzie, Mrs. Mackenzie and Prof. Webster.

May Day Festival

The Annual May Day Festival, given under the auspices of the W. S. G. A., with the assistance of the Physical Education Department, was presented on the afternoon and evening of May 18, 1922. Instead of an original pantomime, such as the one given last year, Tennyson's "The Foresters," giving opportunity for several speaking parts, was chosen for presentation. The play, which provided for fresh woodland scenes and bright, colorful costumes, proved to be delightfully appropriate for an open air spring-time performance.

The opening act showed the nobles assembled in the court of the Earl of Hungtington. There they learn that the Earl, who later becomes Robin Hood, has been banished because of his loyalty to King Richard, whose throne Prince John has usurped. In this act, too, Maid Marian flees to the woods in order to escape marriage with the Sheriff of Nottingham, to whom her father, Sir Richard of the Lea, is indebted. But everything ends ideally. King Richard returns, pays off the debt to the Sheriff, restores to Robin Hood his estate, and gives Maid Marian to him as his bride.

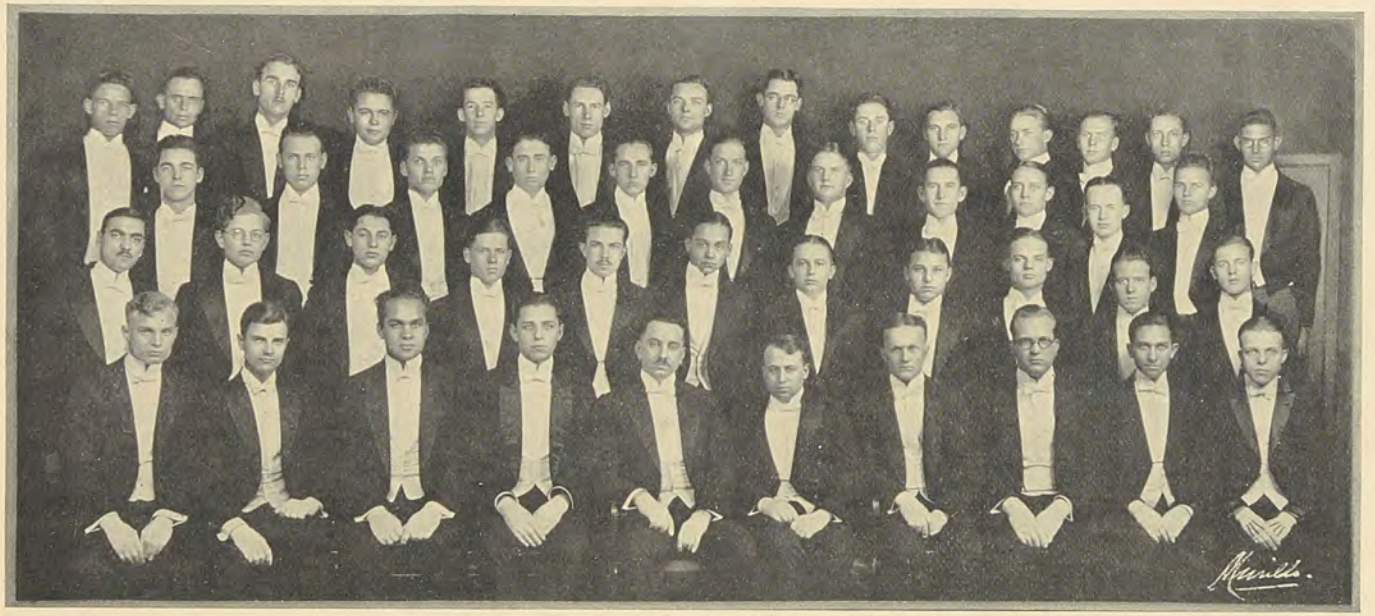

Dancing, giving evidence of talent and careful training, was interspersed throughout the performance. For the solo dance of former years was substituted the ballet or small group dancing, a method of presentation which kept the large court from seeming bare. A gay spring-like atmosphere was obtained by the use of the soft lavenders, pinks, yellows, and blues of the dancers' costumes against a background of dull green, while the introduction of the Minuet Dancers with their gorgeous attire and graceful courtly bows lent variety and bold dashes of color to the court scene.

The principal parts, if one makes allowance for the fact that male parts were being played by young women, were all unusually well played. Edmonia Richmond as Robin Hood, one of her ever increasing list of male roles, was a graceful and handsome young lover. Margaret Steele, whose unwritten responsibility it was to convey the spirit of spring, brought to the part of Maid Marian her personal warmth, tenderness, and gay humor. No one can pick up a forgotten line with more insouciant charm. Lola Fuchs admirably interpreted the part of Sir Richard of the Lea. Her gruff tones became almost convincing in contrast to the ringing child-like voice of Maid Marian. Rose Volland amused the audience with her jolly portrayal of Friar Tuck, while Rosalind Isaacs, pleasantly impressive as Sir Richard, and Jane Sante as Prince John, in keeping with the melting loveliness of the day, were quite friendly enemies. Minor parts were all handled very satisfactorily.

SAINT FATIMA'S
DAY

Dandelion Day

PROMPTLY at 12:30, May 1st, within the roped-off corner of Brookings Terrace, around the edge of which had gathered a somewhat curious throng of spectators, there appeared three squads of Frosh ready for action. As a result of the scarcity of dandelions, the Engineers supporting Miss Marjorie Chapline, adopted a policy of guarding the polls in which were given some interesting exhibitions of amateur football tactics which, coupled with some display of wrestling ability, furnished to the onlookers some real amusement. The sound of the gun at the end of fifteen minutes brought an end to the fray which resulted in an amassed vote of 1983 in favor of Miss Snodgrass.

As a fitting end to the celebration the candidates, Misses Dorothy Snodgrass, Marjorie Chapline, and Clara Goebel, were brought to the scene in the University's traditional surrey by the victorious combination, and each was presented with a beautiful bouquet while Miss Snodgrass was crowned by Henry Arthur, president of the Student Body, with a wreath of dandelions.

St. Fatima's Day

FROM out the massive portals of their sacred temple, Cupples I, exactly at noon and a half, issued these men of the so-called massive intellects, the Architects, in right regal array. First came the heralds, followed by very dark Knights and still darker slaves. Upon the muscular arms of the latter, among whose numbers were the most mighty molecules of all antiquity, rode the patron of those who grovel with a square and ruler for a living.

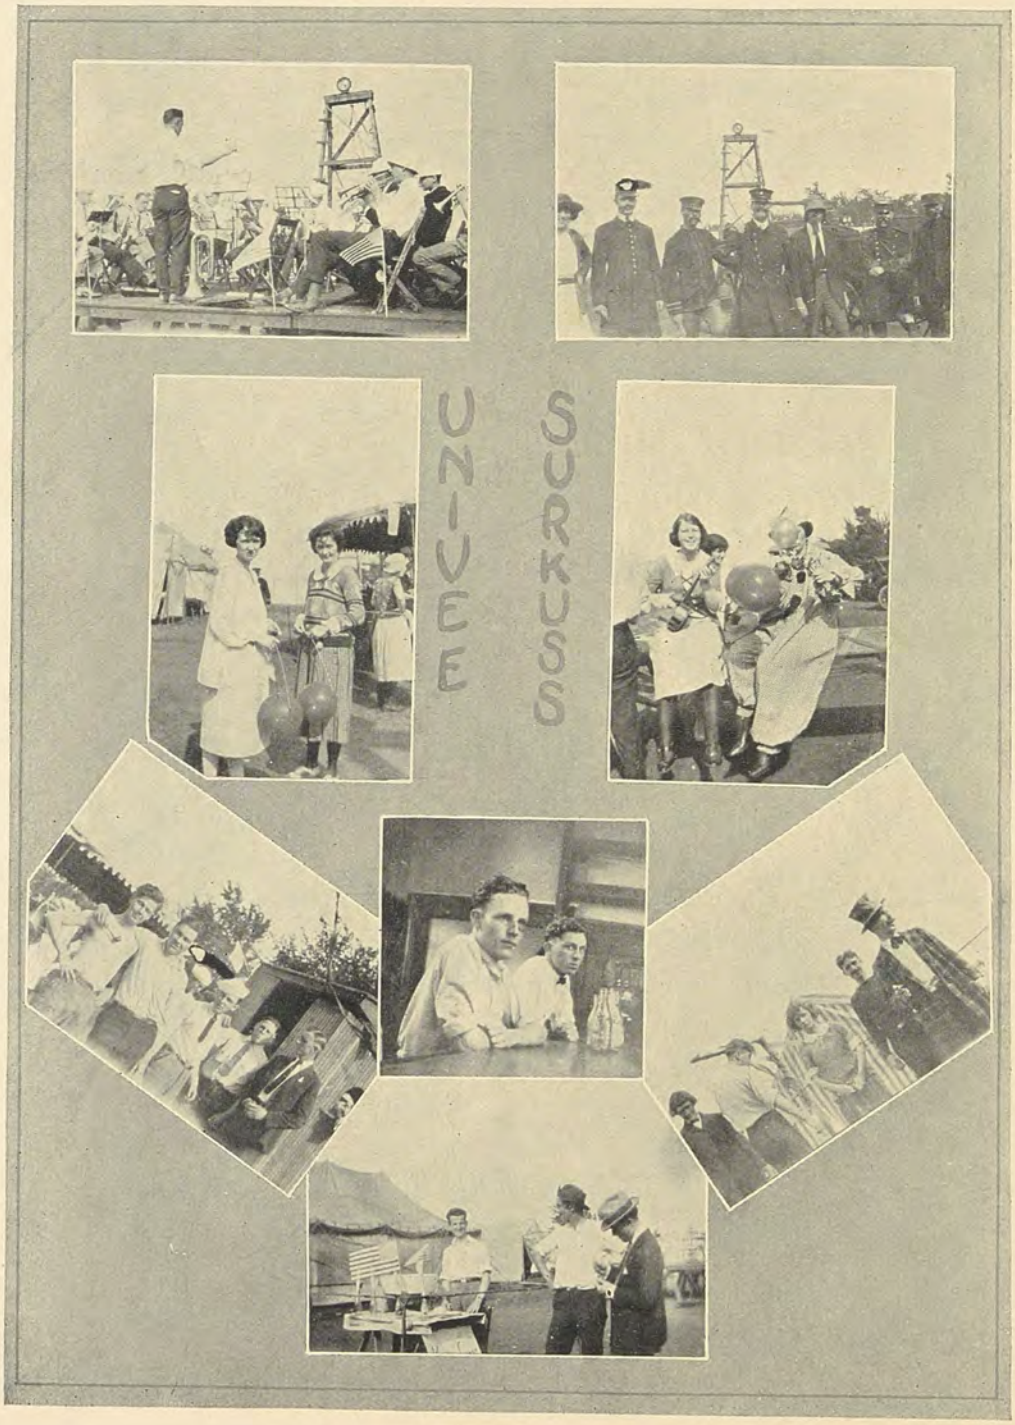

All fell before them. Loud rang the praises of the multitude. Thus marched noble Fatima and her multitudinous train, until they were arrived before the Archway, the shrine of the great god Allah. Dancing, feasting, music, singing, all were used to draw the eye of the All Seeing One, to gain his favor and co-operation in the tremendous task of writing the damndest of the damned, that plaguing and tortuous bain of all Seniors, the Thesis.

The puny efforts of the sylphlike dancers and the atrocious talent of the Architects apparently had no weight in the eyes of the controller of Destiny. Destruction stared them in the face. Was the work of all their years to be thus received and allowed to go for naught? Ah! One last straw was left of their once noble stack. Fatima was still their friend. Out stepped the like of which had never been seen, the blessed Fatima. After seeing such glory I ask you, "Who would walk a mile for a Camel"?

Down dropped the shimmering veils enclosing her gorgeous self and synchronomically dropped the eyes of the now gasping spectators. Proudly, majestically, confidently, she strode to the very altar of Allah. Slowly she

ENGINEER'S DAY

UNIVEE
SURKUSS

The Univee Surkuss

THE Surkuss has came! Senior, freshman, special and Prof. alike are thrilled and long for those care-free days of childhood that are called to mind when the Surkuss is mentioned. It is the custom at Washington for Pralma to conduct a Surkuss as an annual affair and to donate the numerous shekels so derived to poor and needy organizations, such as the Book Store and Garavelli's. The spirit that prevails and the concessions and shows put on rival those of any professional circus.

The 17th of May was the day when the University cast off their shackles and cast loose their shekels and made merry. All of the traditional truck usually found in circuses was on hand and a whole lot that a real circus never saw was pawned off on the crowd as real and genuine "big top" material. Soft drinks in the form of beerless root beer and lemonless lemonade were poured out to those who were thirsty and to those who were not. Wonders never before dreamed of, such as the dismemberment of the fairest of the fair co-eds (Alice Clifford), and then the reconciliation of these same severed members.

In another spot the Thyrsus histrions slashed, banged, and swashbuckled enough villians and married enough lovers to keep those two well-known altruists, the undertaker and the preacher, in customers for all time. The Awful Architects also stirred the hearts of the multitude and revolutionized the drama with continuous presentations of Junio and Ruliet.

For those who were young in the wiles of the underworld the lawyers carried on in true bacchanalian splendor an Alamac so like the original that we shudder for them. Wine, women, men and song led the unsuspecting lad and maid astray and we are told that the lawyers sheepishly followed after. The death-defying freshman of "lick and chawm" dropt fearlessly into freezing cauldrons of icy fluid when the throne upon which they were resting was blown from under them by the merciless crowd.

"Wind pudding" was dispensed by a gay, glittering galaxy of gorgeous girlies and many were they who imbibed not for nothingly but freely of the purple prune juice sold by these fair damsels. Peppery puppies were passed over the bar of the thrifty "Thirteen" and the crowd hungrily stormed the dog-tired bartenders until the doggoned dogs were all taken and there was nothing left for the men to bark about.

In the mad scramble for cupie dolls and rides on the perpetually moving merry-go-round propelled by the lowest form of algae and microscopic organisms which made music while they worked, men became separated from their wives and mothers lost their babes. But, oh! There was joy in Washington that night, for the Surkuss in all its glory gave that necessary stimulus to study known as relaxation and made money for the suffering societies. The lonesome children and happy husbands were all taken back to the folds and enfolded in the arms of their beloved and a good time was had by all. Here's to the next Surkuss!

Drama

Co-Ed Vodvil

CO-ED Vodvil (formerly Keod Vodvil), under the direction of Charlotte Coombe, was presented at Mary Institute on December 9, 1922, before large, appreciative audiences at both afternoon and evening performances.

Asklepios' parody on the popular song, "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," the first offering of the evening, with Josephine Coles as Mr. Gallagher and Faith Nickell as Mr. Shean, was also used in the interim between each act as a novel method of introducing the succeeding number.

Thyrsus' presentation, a one-act playlet entitled, "In the Moonlight," enacted by Betty Lord and Marie Reid, was a love scene, one of the chief charms of which was its novelty—a monosyllabic dialogue.

Gamma Phi Beta, in "Milady's Beauty," by means of song and costume, gave a very gorgeous personification of vanishing cold cream, rouge and other cosmetics. As a result of their application, the sleeping beauty (Frances Jones) was awakened by her Prince Charming (Mary Jones) in accordance with the commands of the Queen of Beauty (Louise Brouster.)

"Games of Yesterday," by Kappa Alpha Theta, with jazzy music and unique costumes, characterized "bones," "put and take," and similar nefarious games.

Kappa Kappa Gamma portrayed the wiles and whims of two university girls (Elizabeth Caulfield and Winfred Church) at "The Bookstand." "Pollyanna," "Seventeen" and other offerings of the saleslady (Esther Skinner) pleasingly personified were one by one turned down until "Dirge" (Ella Marie Wilson) appeared on the scene.

Pi Beta Phi presented in two acts one of the most original numbers on the program, "Chauve Souris," a version of the Russian vodvil. The first act was a courting scene played by Alice Phillipson, Alice Clifford, and Virginia Gorin with a doll-like mechanical rhythm which held the audience in tense silence throughout. The second act revolved almost entirely around the indomitable Peggy Steele, who sang, danced, and in other ways did her darndest to win the consent of her parents (Helen Staudinger and Adelaide Hodgson) to her marriage. Success, of course, crowned her efforts.

"Faust," by Delta Gamma, showed the vicissitudes of a young Washington man (Edmonia Richmond) in love with a Co-ed (June Henckler). After selling his soul to the Devil (Josephine Brown), the action works up to a climax in which his sweetheart (June Henckler) ascends a stepladder to heaven. Dialogue set to strains of "Faust," "Il Trovatore," and "Tales of Hoffman" proved an added treat.

C. E. Trip

ON Sept. 3rd, twenty Civil Engineering students and two professors, with a full quota of surveying instruments, left St. Louis on the annual surveying trip of the C. E. Department. During the trip, numerous unexpected delays and one broken nose were about the only notable things encountered. At last, about five hours behind schedule, the special car of the party arrived in Colorado Springs. A short trolley ride and a pleasant auto drive through the famous Ute Pass brought them to their destination, Columbine Hall, Green Mountain Falls. The arrival of the party was heralded by the appearance of snappy write-ups in several of the leading papers.

The work of the party was begun immediately. The Juniors were kept busy for three weeks making a topographical survey of Ute Pass in the vicinity of the town, while the Seniors established a triangulation system and located a railroad spur on a difficult sideslope of the mountain. Two hours every evening except Saturday were devoted to computations and discussions relating to the work of the day.

On Saturday evenings, the usual social function was the weekly dance of the Kinni-Kinnik Klub. The scarcity of girls caused a friendly rivalry for the privilege of a dance. Another unique event was the "Tacky Party," in which Prof. Sweetser and Art Elsperman dressed in female attire in the feature contest of the evening. Another source of amusement was the horseshoe tournament, made interesting by the many freak antics of the shoes. The rest of the spare time was spent in fussing, exploring, and horseback riding. The many evening gatherings at Jack Spain's general store, and his ing generosity will never be forgotten.

Several long trips were made to surrounding points of interest. On one trip, the party covered 180 miles, circling Pike's Peak, and visiting such far-famed places as the Royal Gorge, Petrified Forest, historic gold fields, etc. At other times, some of the party went on fish-clubbing expeditions, while others hiked to the top of Pike's Peak and back. # The Magic Loom

On the nights of May 30, 31, and June 1, the St. Louis School of Fine Arts presented its annual pantomimic pageant and masque. The story was "The Magic Loom," a fantastic romance, adapted from Anderson's fairy tale, "The King's New Clothes."

As on former occasions, the west facade and terrace of the school were used as a stage and proscenium. Seated back in a glamorous grove was the audience, flanked by trees and shrubbery, and hidden almost completely from the players by darkness.

The mood of the fairy-tale pantomime was conveyed to the audience even before the curtain arose for as the orchestra began its overture, a group of children came dancing in on the greensward, and impelled by curiosity, drew aside the stage-curtain, discovering old Hans Christian Anderson himself. He descended to the terrace and at the children's request, began to tell them a story. The pantomime then commenced. Anderson's story in verse form was told between acts, and served to explain the scenes which followed.

The central figure of the story is a royal popinjay who comes every day to the market place that his subjects may admire his garments. The action opens in the market place in a quaint village of narrow, crooked streets, grotesque houses and queer shops, with the entrance of the Pied Piper and a picturesque horde of children. The Pied Piper sets the market crowd to jigging, but the dance is interrupted by the King on his daily shopping tour and dress parade. Harlequin and his band of strolling minstrels are permitted by the King to entertain the court and his majesty. While the minstrels dance the King becomes ravished with Columbine's beauty and grace, and invites her to join his court. She accepts and goes off with the royal party. As night falls, Harlequin, deserted, falls asleep by the Weaver's booth. Just before dawn he awakes with a clever idea for humbling the vain King and regaining Columbine. He bribes four thieves to help him steal the Weaver's loom. He then writes a letter and sends it by the thieves' apprentice to the King. Anderson stops the messenger on his way, reads the letter to the children, and informs the audience that the thieves and Harlequin, disguised as foreign weavers, intend to show his Highness their magic loom and the cloth which is visible only to worthy souls.

Art School Activities

IT is the custom at the Art School for the new students to entertain the old students and alumni with a vaudeville show and banquet. This year the fun began on the second Friday in November. In the afternoon twelve acts of "big time" stuff were presented by the newcomers, in which they displayed their originality and talent. Martha Gale presented two popular songs, "Mon Homme" and "Do it Again", and participated in a pleasing skit in which she was accompanied by Carroll Smith, Harry Wylie and Dick Ellett. Herbert Ellsworth impersonated Rodolph Valentino and gave a very clever "chalk talk". There was also a ballet in which Maxine Hambley and Margaret Sherwood pirouetted daintily about, a fashion parade, and a dance in which Helen Williams, as a wicked Apaché, and Anne Musick, her partner, made quite a dashing couple. Marie Chenot "tickled the ivories" throughout the evening. Following this entertainment was the banquet, served to about three hundred persons, and a dance which ended up the day's festivities. Harry Wylie was in charge of the new students, and much of the success of the evening was due to his efforts.

The Bazaar

Each year the Art Students hold a bazaar, lasting for a period of three days. On the afternoons and evenings of December 6, 7 and 8, the Art School was open to the public and numerous examples of the work done by the students was placed on display to prospective purchasers. The money obtained from the sale of these articles goes partly to the creator, and the balance to the Art Students' Asociation. From this the Association is able to maintain several scholarships and also to provide a fund from which needy students may borrow. The bazaar was well attended this year, and the number of attractive articles was considerably diminished by the large sales. The tea room, which was decorated in black and white and modeled on the plan of a Fifth Avenue "salle de thé", was operated in conjunction with the bazaar, proved to be quite a drawing card, and helped to make the affair a financial success.

The Bal Masque

The festive event of the Art School year is the Bal Masque. This year the Masque was given at the Gatesworth Hotel on February 20th. The attendance was large and the variety and beauty of the costumes made the Masque a very gorgeous affair and perhaps the best ever given by the Art School. Among the dancers who were found gaily whirling around the floor were Chinks, Valentinos, Highlanders, Hawaiians, toreadors, chorus girls, Russians, Little Lord Fauntleroys, Little Evas, Cleopatras, Al Jolsons, vampires, naive country lasses, harem favorites and whirling dervishes. Toward the end of the evening, Miss Helen Johnson was proclaimed Art School Queen by Mr. Arthur Krause and was accepted on behalf of the Hatchet by the editor, Mr. Edward Randall. After the coronation, prizes were awarded to the wearers of the most distinctive costumes. The first prize for the best costume went to Miss Martha Gale, who was garbed in a magnificent Spanish mantilla. Miss Evelyn Miller, in a dress dating back to 1890, received the prize for the best period costume, and Miss Dorothy Young, bedecked as the Knave of Hearts, captured the prize for the most original costume. Music was furnished by the Bella Vista Orchestra, and the arrangements for the dance were made under the direction of Mr. Arthur Krause.

The Junior Prom

THE climax of the sixteenth annual Junior Prom, held on the evening of March 25, was reached when, amid a scene of magnificent splendor and beauty, Miss Georgia Hughes was crowned as the 1924 Hatchet Queen, and hailed as Queen of Love and Beauty for the coming year. The excitement of the dance and the pleasure in the beauty of the ballroom was heightened by anticipations of the imminent crowning, the final result of one of the most hotly fought Hatchet Queen contests ever held. At last, when sharply at midnight, immemediately after the grand march, a group of Freshmen advanced through the throng to form an aisle down which the queen and her attendants were to pass, and with others looking down from the balcony, all became hushed with expectancy.

At the appearance of the first candidate, Miss Margaret Steele, on the arm of Mark Woods, the silence was broken by an enthusiastic burst of applause. Each candidate who followed—Miss Ann Kinnaird with Karl Kammann, Miss Winifred Church with Donald Nordmeyer, and Miss Eleanor McCormick with William Carleton—was greeted warmly by the spectators. After a short pause, followed by a blast from the bugles, Miss Georgia Hughes, Engineers' Queen of 1922, escorted by Edward Randall, Editor of the 1924 Hatchet, advanced slowly and impressively again to the weird strains of "A Song of India," to sit for a second time on the royal dais erected at the west end of the ballroom. After a presentation speech by Mr. Randall, and a speech of acknowledgment by Walter Hellinger, President of the Junior Class, the coronation took place.

Miss Steele's naive girlish charm was enhanced by a demure frock of pale yellow georgette, trimmed with ruffles of soft lace. Miss Kinnaird was ethereally beautiful in a creation of orchid satin sparkling with beads. The gown worn by Miss Church, and which showed her to great advantage, was composed of a slip of sequins over green georgette and cut on simple and classic lines. Miss McCormick made a regal figure in a stately gown of green georgette and silver lace. The petite Miss Hughes was queenly gowned in a model of crushed silver cloth which gleamed radiantly in the spotlight. The bodice was plainly fashioned, but the skirt was cleverly draped and caught up at the side with a large pearl ornament.

For this, the most important social event of the year, the gymnasium was completely transformed into a strange place of mystic loveliness. The walls were hung with draperies of white bordered with gold, while from the ceiling similarly covered were suspended bright lanterns of various colors. At one end of the room, the throne of deep purple and gold rose majestically, while at the other end, a fountain banked with fresh green ferns threw its spray of perfumed water into the air. Rose colored lights played over the gay throng, adding a mellow glow to the whole scene. Placed at various intervals among the draperies, were alcoves affording a pleasant retreat where one might stop to rest or chat with the chaperones.

The chaperones were: Mr. and Mrs. Whitbread, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Treadway, Mr. and Mrs. McCord, Dr. and Mrs. Lippincott, Mr. and Mrs. Kinnaird, Mrs. Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Dale, Mr. and Mrs. Derby, Mr. and Mrs. Church and Mr. and Mrs. Cullen.

Preface

This section of our annual is considered as the science of human behavior. It considers man's response to the impressions made upon him by objects, people and events. They make up the situations that he meets. Behavior—the individual way of dealing with these situations—if not a complete failure, results finally in some sort of adjustment to the conditions in which one lives; and their adjustments culminates in social and moral habits, in habits of work, in ways of life.

It is well, then, from time to time to take an inventory of stock and try to discover the significance of the facts and principle of human behavior which investigation has revealed. It is, therefore, in the hope of interpreting a few of these personal experiences of daily life that this book is written. —EDGAR JAMES SWIFT

So you see, Mr. Reader, that these are our sentiments exactly. We have in no way tried to discriminate against any one just for sake of filling our little section. We have merely investigated for our own progress and reform; never tolerating injustice or corruption; never being afraid to attack wrong whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

"Hello Men"

P. S. The burden of Mr. Glore's work was so pressing that we had to wait until he retired in order to get a picture of him for our dedication page.

Dedication

To one, because of his distinctive character, has revealed to us a vast and increasing knowledge of all things that be, that have been, that will be; whose conception of the universe is being constantly forced upon us, the unenlightened; whose steadfast devotion to the cause of bringing about an uplift in the average mentality of Pikers at large has never waivered; to Mr. Washington Himself, registered here as Emmet Glore, do we dedicate this, the 1924 Quadwrangles.

Smulian Fuhri Wienrich

OHREM SMULIAN, our dear little Arkansas friend and the typical campus jellybean. Ohrem wears all the latest Parisian clothes and dances all the newest steps from Olive street, and oh! how the girls fall for him. How could they help it? He's so good looking, has such a wonderful line, dresses marvellously, and is a perfect dancer. If you don't believe us, ask Ohrem. He told us.

"Open the Hatchet office door, Mr. Fuhri, and come right in. Help yourself to anything you see and make yourself perfectly at home. Since you didn't find the picture you were looking for, maybe we can help you." You see people, Mr. Fuhri was afraid that we were going to run a picture that we had of him so he tried to help us find it—when no one was looking. The picture was a good one all right, but Helen Crawford protested so strongly that we didn't use it.

Meet Mr. Carl Wienrich, the self appointed heart smasher of the school. We men have no chance at all when Carl is around. The girls just won't let him alone, or should we put it the other way He just won't let the girls alone. You know he has that dignified way of molesting the campus. He doesn't seem to notice anything or anybody in particular except himself. Anyway Mr. Wienrich is enrolled in our school and we like you to meet him.

Kohn Vogel Smith

HAIL our hero, Sol Kohn, who squeezed a hoax out of four bits. We admit, Sol, it's not the money, but it's the principle of the thing. It's true big men get away with lots of little things, but you weren't quite big enough to get away with a little thing and keep your name on the Thyrsus roster. The publicity you received was fine, and it's not every one who can demand a column on the front page of Student Life all over nothing at all.

Thyrsus may or may not be running true to form as far as parliamentary rules are concerned, but why prepare a rebuttal after a self-appointed strike caused your downfall?

Ladies and gentlemen, be seated, and remove your hats. Here comes Valentine Vogel. She took our school by storm and showered the razz section with a basket full of photos. Yes, all of herself. However we could only donate one page instead of ten or twelve. Rather than write a lot of nice things about her we will have you turn to page 493, where you can see this Val Vogel in person.

Behold the Art Editor in a thoughtful mood, as indicated by the half closed lids so characteristic of the true artist. Here was a good handy man about the office, entertaining the visitors, giving interviews to Student Life reporters, and occasionally taking time off to get out a few cuts. Originator of the idea to mail the Hatchet, the long promised issues of the Dirge, and the semester grades together in a neat package during the summer vacation. He played golf for four days before he found that his idea had not been adopted.

Kissack Hart Carleton

GANGWAY! Here comes Hamlet. Enter the Honorable Robert Kissack. Now that you are with us, Robert, please dismount from your high horse and come down to earth. We would like to look at you. Well, well, so you are that great and almighty actor. Everyone look. It won't cost you a red cent. Now Robert you can leave. We compliment you on knowing the old proverb, "The world's a stage."

"How come Quo Vadis is having a meeting over in Forest Park today", said our friend, Chester Hart, one day this spring upon seeing the pole with the red flag stuck in one of the greens. Yes, this is the Mr. Hart who continually wears knickers, who looks like a philosopher, but who never plays golf. We admit the knickers are cute and the stockings are cuter while Chester is—well, you should see him. What could be sweeter than the flowers that bloom in the spring? Tra-la, tra-la, tra-la. Long live golf.

Among the handicaps that the Hatchet staff had to endure, the presence of our distinguished business manager, Bill Carleton, stands out as Number One liability. Willie was in the office five or ten minutes a day—every 43rd day—to show us that he was on the job. As a business manager we are loathe to judge him, because we saw so little of him. But when it came to representing Hatchet at any of the social functions, Library step gatherings, or such affairs, Bill was a whole truck load of hot rocks.

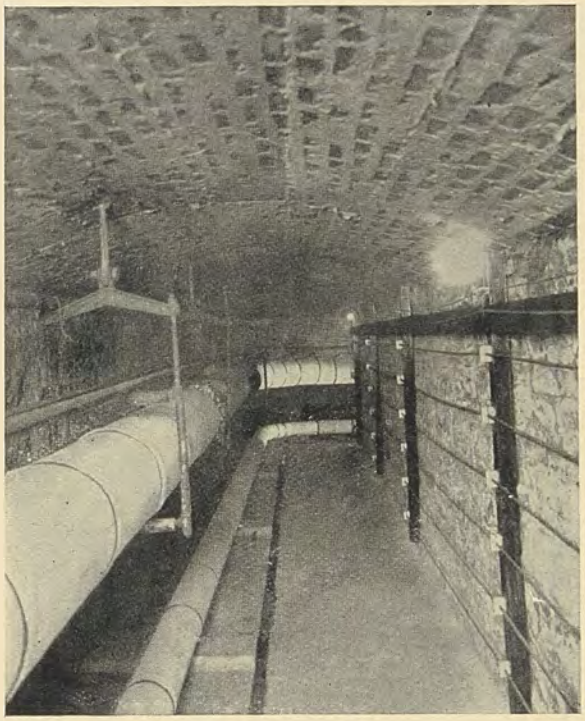

Hartman Randall Gallenkamp

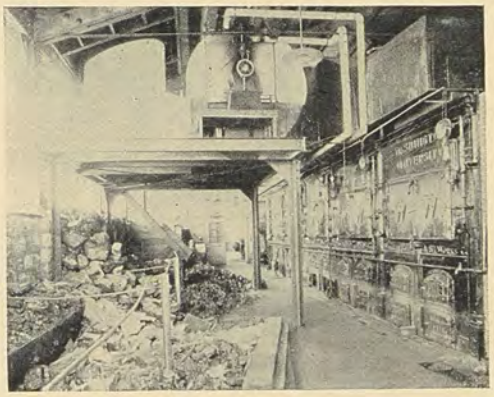

WE here present to you a man that has ordered us to keep his name from appearing in this book. However we have seen through his bluff. No man wished more to be written up. The gentleman is Nelson "Zipper" Hartman and he hails from the metropolis, Waterloo, Illinois. We hunted, vainly, far and wide, for some act of his that would elevate him to such a point of distinction as to make it worthy to razz him. Yet we did not want to disappoint the dear lad, so we merely put him up before the student body as our dark horse. If he rates a razz, tell him about it and relieve us of our strain.

And while we are about it, there's that other deficit of ours, Edward Steven Eucalyptus Randall, recommended last year as a good Editor-in-Chief. Aside from falling in love every other week, going down to the Art School to see how things were getting along, talking about the things that he had to worry about, and otherwise getting into condition to put out a Hatchet, Ed spent some time in the office really working. Look at that Bonanza, the Hatchet Benefit dance, if you don't think he is good. But Ed's a nice boy, though, so we won't tell all we know.

Last on our list is a man, if he may be called a man, that everyone will immediately recognize as deserving a place in our section. He is the highest advanced bit of squirrel food that infests our campus and he answers to the cognomen of Curt Gallenkamp, although he is famil-

ONE NIGHT IN MARCH
RAHS-RAHS LAND 12 YOUTHS IN PAGE AVENUE HOLDOVER
A dozen Washington University students who applauded a student orator with college yells and songs at 3:30 a. m. today in a restaurant at 5894 Delmar boulevard, spent forty minutes in a cell at the Page Boulevard Station following a raid by police on complaint of neighbors who desired to sleep. When the prisoners arrived at the station they showered the desk sergeant with chewing gum and greeted him with song. He got even by packing them all in one cell, until a professional bondsman appeared. They will appear in city court Thursday.
12 STUDENTS ARRESTED IN LUNCHROOM RACKET
Dressed in Evening Clothes They Get Ride in Patrol Wagon.
Thirteen young men, twelve of whom said that they were students at Washington University, were arrested in the Golden Bee, an all-night lunchroom at 5894 Delmar boulevard, early yesterday morning on the complaint of Mrs. Horace L. Rideout, who occupies the apartment adjoining the lunchroom.
Police who arrived at the restaurant following Mrs. Rideout's complaint that young people were making "an awful racket" there, found the young men, most of whom were in evening clothes, engaged in several kinds of nolesome revelry.
Broken dishes were upon the floor. Pete Corfiatis, proprietor, told the police that he did not disapprove of the collegians' Bohemian conduct.
The Page Avenue District patrol wagon took the students to the police station where they were placed in the holdover until a professional bondsman arrived at the station and signed their bonds.

12 STUDENTS ARRESTED FOR REVELRY IN CAFE
Dancing on Lunch Counter at 2:30 A. M. Riles Neighbors and Results in Raid.
The Golden Bee, an all-night lunchroom at 5894 Delmar boulevard, which buzzes with revelry every Friday night when groups of West End youths, including many students gather there on their return from dances, fairly outbossed itself last night, and caused the arrest of young men, 12 of whom said they were Washington University students.
13 Jolly Undergrads End Song Spree in Jail, Sans Naughty Vanity Cases
"Bright College Years" were eclipsed for 13 lusty-lunged Washington University boys about 3:30 a. m. today when a patrol wagon backed up to 5894 Delmar boulevard and conveyed the singers of "Three O'Clock in the Morning," "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark" and similar ditties to the Page Avenue Police Station.
The gleeful 13 didn't mind this diversion a bit. All they asked was that they be not separated; they had been together at a dance, they had supped together afterward and they had been arrested together—would the sergeant be so kind as to put them all in one cell?
The desk sergeant, a member of the faculty of Chief O'Brien's college, granted the request, and turned the cell key with a tear in his right eye. Forty-five minutes later Arthur Lancaster, professional bondsman, and a graduate of the University of Hardknox, arrived and bailed the 13 out.
Naughty Lad Has Puff and Vanity Case.
The 13 were ordered to appear in City Court No. 2, Monday morning, to face peace disturbance charges. One of those arrested had a vanity case and powder puff in a coat pocket, and a charge of carrying concealed and deadly weapons was at first considered, then dropped.
The call for police was flashed by Mrs. Horace L. Rideout, 5904a Delmar avenue, who was trying to sleep next door to the Golden Bee Restaurant at 5894, in which the boys were renting the circumambient air. Sergt. Missenore and Patrolman Knoll arrived, and found:
One disciple of Demosthenes orating, while the other 12 gave him assorted varieties of "raz-berries." As the orator raised his pitch his auditors burst into song. Mrs. Rideout, unimpressed by their efforts, said she would prosecute.
After paying the restauranteur for food devoured, the 13, and three policemen, got in the wagon and motored to the station. The boys greeted the desk sergeant with a barrage of chewing gum. He stuck to his job, notwithstanding, and booked the following prisoners:
Richard Boyer, 20, 520 South Clay street, Kirkwood; Robert M. Armstrong, 20, 727 Leland avenue, University City; Charles W. Fletcher, 21, University Fraternity House; Archie Boyd, 18, 2323 C street, Granite City; Oscar Claypool, 23, University Frat. House; John Closs, 21, 7045 Maryland terrace, University City; James Christensen, 20, 5926 McPherson avenue; Walter E. Dickie, 29, 324 W. Lockwood, Webster Groves; William Gerhart, 21, 4600 Westminster; Jerome Simon, 23, 1201 McCausland avenue; Edwin L. Fitch, 20, 111 Edwin avenue, Kirkwood; Jean Hancock, 21, 6166 Waterman avenue; Harry McCullom, 25, 4619 McPherson. All save McCullom, a salesmag, said they are Washington University students.
Mrs. Rideout and neighbors told police the students' yells, songs and other expressions of glee have become too frequent and too terrific to continue. Wherefore, the arrests and prosecutions.
P. S. The name of the orator was not obtained. He is said to have delivered a powerful and moving address.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN leaving the Law School of the Washington University, I chanced to pick up a blossom that was lying on the ground. I had no sooner picked it up when a big ignoramus in a Ford sedan threatened to have me arrested. I don't know whether this man had any authority or any connection with the university, but if he had, God help the institution.

What a Hatchet Queen Thinks About

WELL, well, I am a Hatchet Queen contestant. It's about time some one discovered my rare charm and beauty. Really I thought they would miss me. I sure possess the qualities for the makings of a queen or my friends would never have nominated me. Let's see, there are four others running besides myself. I suppose they have high hopes of being elected, too. Personally, I don't think they have a chance. Now, really, I am better looking than they are. I know I am because I've been told by gangs of students, some of whom I've never seen before in my life, that they think I should be elected because of my beauty. To tell the truth, I think the persons who nominated the other four had a lot of crust. I don't think they would even rate an extra part in one of the large mob scenes in one of our ham movies. One of the contestants even had the nerve to say that she was glad I was running because then she would have a little competition. You know what I think of her. A friend told me yesterday that he already had thirteen dollars worth of ads to my credit. I guess that won't knock a hole in 'em. He told me personally that if I wasn't elected it would be due to dirty politics. I do wish the contest would be judged like Student Life conducted theirs. Only one judge. I wouldn't have to worry then. It's funny, but I'm not the least bit nervous. The other four contestants shake the whole campus when they walk, they're so upset. I am third on the register but my most ardent admirer told me they were keeping all my votes until the last, and tomorrow nite, one second before six, he's going to stuff the box with my votes. Isn't that sweet of him? He told me it was darn hard to get ads this year and no one seemed to want a Hatchet. But I have a world of confidence in my friends, especially my boy friends. You know so many of them have a mad crush on me. Oh, yes, they told me so. Well, anyway, I won't let preoccupation step in and bother me. I will let all of my mad crushes work their heads off while I catch up in a few studies.

The Magic Loom

The next act is in a resplendent throne room in which the King receives the weavers. He is duped by them. He professes not only to see the invisible fabric, but also goes into ecstacies over its beauties. The courtiers faced by the alternatives of telling the King that he is an imbecile or confessing to him that they have not the requirements necessary for seeing the cloth, fall in with the idea, and add their praises to those of their sovereign. The second act provided a procession of mannequins that was rich and harmonious. There was also a vanity dance by three girls before mirrors.

The climax occurs when the King returns to the market place to display his robe, woven by the magic loom. The dumbfounded tradesmen perceive their lord and master approaching at a mincing pace wearing only his crown, his shoes, and his hose. The courtiers stifle their laughter as the grotesque monarch prances and poses, but a little girl breaks the silence with a shrill shout: "Why the King has no clothes on!" which is followed by an uproariously undignified retreat on the part of His Majesty. Columbine realizes the asininity of her royal patron and returns to her faithful Harlequin.

Delmar Gray, in the part of Hans Christian Anderson, introduced the play by reading aloud to the children, His lines were written by Arthur Schneff. Warren Hagee as Harlequin the lover, and Marian Crawley as Columbine, the dancer, made an enchanting picture. The vain and self-satisfied King was played in quite a professional manner by Oscar Seitz, and Arthur Krause, as the King's droll Chancellor, called forth much laughter by his flattering attentions to his pampered master. Robert Rhodes played the part of the Merry Pied Piper, while Emanuel Essman, the plotting weaver, and the five thieves lent an air of conspiracy, giving the spectacle some semblance of dramatic interest.

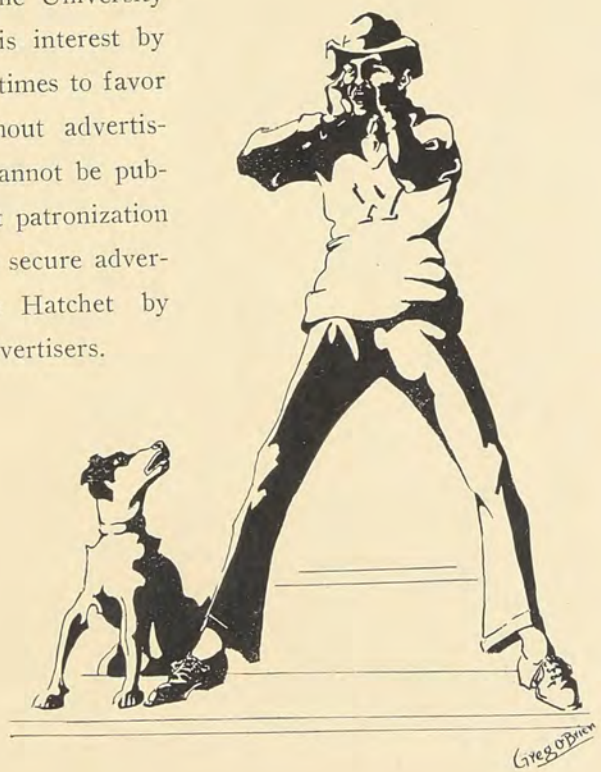

The settings and costume in all three acts were consistent with the theme of the fairy tale in their grotesque and fantastic designs and made of the whole a gorgeous spectacle of riotous color and beauty.

The production was under the experienced direction of Mr. Harland Frazer and the entire production, including costuming, staging and lighting effects, and music was carried out by members of the Art School.

The pageant, the proceeds of which went to support the Art School Scholarship Fund, was the most successful of the four that have been presented annually and aroused much favorable criticism in art circles in St. Louis.

ROOT FOR OUR ADVERTISERS

The advertisers in the 1924 Hatchet have shown marked interest not only in the year book, but in the University as a whole. The students of the University can reciprocate this interest by endeavoring at all times to favor these firms. Without advertising a year book cannot be published, but without patronization it is impossible to secure advertising. Help the Hatchet by patronizing our advertisers.

CHARLES PETERS GAINS 25 POUNDS IN TAKING "LACTAN"

Declares It Completely Overcame Stomach Trouble and Weakness Left by Bad Liquor.

"The other day the scales showed me a gain of twenty-five pounds, and it sure made me feel thankful for "Lactan," was the characteristic statement of Charles M. Peters of Paola, Kansas, and a valued member of our Middle Law Class.

"Moonshine left me all run down, with my stomach so out of order I couldn't get back my strength, and was 'way under weight. I suffered so badly with indigestion my food did me little good, bloated me with gas till my heart palpitated like a trip hammer, and I lost all appetite. Biliousness, constipation, headaches, sleeplessness and unstrung nerves put the finishing touches on my misery and I could find no relief.

"Since taking Lactan I eat like a farm hand, sleep like a top and feel as husky as I did when I was a brawny lad on the Freshman football team of the University of Kansas. Lactan is in a class by itself."

Lactan is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.

Tennis—Fall, 1922

Despite the loss, by graduation of three letter-men, Captain Brown, Barnes, and Sauselle, the fall season of 1922 again witnessed a Piker victory over Illinois. Captain-elect Kammann, by easily defeating Myers of Illinois, the Western Conference Champion, stepped into Wray Brown's place as the leading college player of the middle west. Kammann was ably supported by Minner and Bierman, both playing their first year of collegiate tennis. At the end of the two days play the Illini had been forced to accept the short end of the score, Washington having annexed 5 victories out of eight matches played. The Pikeway team, having in its personnel only one veteran, thus showed potential power by defeating a team of more experienced netsters.

With Captain Kammann, Bierman, and Minner back in the spring, and such good material as Wienecke and Scherrer with which to augment the team, the future of the 1923 team seems to be a roseate one indeed. The team bids fair to uphold all the honors won through the efforts of its past teams, which have been of such a nature that Washington has not tasted defeat in a tennis meet since October, 1920.

SHOELESS INDIVIDUAL WANDERS K. C. STREETS

Kansas City crowds returning from the theatre last Saturday were startled to see a nonchalant young man, coat and bag in hand, carefully pussy-footing down Main street in his stocking feet. The shoeless individual boarded a street car and rushed for the Union Station. When interviewed by a STUDENT LIFE reporter in the Pullman of a St. Louis bound train, the unfortunate explained that he was Bill Bremser, a track man from Washington University, and had had the misfortune of having his shoes stolen at the Missouri Valley Track Meet. He denied that he could obtain no shoes in Kansas City large enough to fit him.

Baseball

Following their steady victories on the home lot, the team left on the northern trip confident of success. The first game at Ames, with DeBolt pitching, was easily won, 8 to 3. The contest was a veritable slug-fest, seven Pikers getting extra base hits. However, in the second game Washington received its first setback of the year. Fries' arm, which had been none too strong the previous week, suddenly went lame. This unfortunate occurrence, coupled with several fielding errors and poor batting, caused the defeat of the Pikers by a 9 to 3 score.

The team then journeyed to Nebraska, where Trautwein and Ziegenbein engaged in a nice pitchers' battle, till the tenth inning, when the Pikers batted in four runs to win, 8 to 4. Trautwein was put in in the second inning, after the Nebraskans had nicked Fries for two runs in the initial frame. The second game was lost, 8 to 5. DeBolt and Munger pitched creditable games, but Frank's support weakened at critical moments.

The next encounters were the decisive games of the year. At the time of the trip to Missouri, the Pikers were in a three-cornered tie with Kansas and Nebraska. The opening game was a slugging match all the way. The Pikers stepped in to a seven run lead only to have the Tigers tie it up in the ninth inning; however, Washington put over the necessary runs in the first of the tenth, winning 11 to 9.

Baseball

The second Missouri game was the most disappointing of the season. With the starting of the over-worked DeBolt and Fries out of the question, Coach Davis had to choose between Trautwein and Scurlock and chose the latter. Rog vindicated the coach's judgment by pitching a beautiful game against Ficklin, the Tiger ace. However, in one inning, when Rog and his support momentarily weakened, Mizzou forced over three runs. These proved to be the only tallies of the day. The Pikers could not connect with Ficklin's slants, getting only four hits.

Concordia and the Pikers divided the series for the City Championship. The Seminary won the first on a muddy diamond in Forest Park, 7 to 5, but the Pikers took the next, 6 to 5. Both were only six inning games and did not affect the Piker team's conference records.

The team loses Captain Shanley, Wyman, Finn, Linnemeyer, Trautwein, Thompson, and Scurlock by graduation, and Bobby Edgar by ineligibility, but the Freshman team should graduate enough men to back up our all-star pitching staff and Captain Magualo in this year's championship race.

Interscholastic Basketball

The roll of honor picked by the officials of the tournament for good playing was as follows: Forwards, Rheinhardt (Cleveland), McCollom (Farina), Stolte and Miller (Edwardsville), Bloom (Bridgeport); guards, Cotner (Mt. Carmel), Wohlschlaeger (Webster), Thomas (Central), Kostoff (Granite City); centers, Holsen (Mt. Carmel), Pate, (Cleveland), Rauchman (Farina), Lee (West Frankfort).

This year's tournament was the first that was truly Mississippi Valley in character. Teams were entered from most of the surrounding Missouri and Illinois towns and there were several from Iowa. Keokuk, Iowa, came down with an exceptionally good team, but was eliminated by Edwardsville in the third round. With thirty-six teams entered, this year's tournament was one of the largest in the Middle West.

The teams from out of town were housed, as is the custom, by the various fraternities, but all meals were furnished at Commons by the University. Interest was much higher among the student body and the attendance at the games was much larger than at the previous tournaments.

next lost to Richardson of the Miners. Both men wrestled well, but the weight handicap was too much for the Piker entry to overcome. In a very hard fought match, Al Schettler lost to Garr. Neither man won a fall, but the match was awarded to the Miner on points. In the feature match of the evening, Captain Meeker easily disposed of Schramm, the Rolla satellite. Schramm put up a good battle, but Meeker gave a sterling exhibition of wrestling and won both falls without difficulty.

Engaging in a return meet with Rolla in the middle of March, the Pikers were again defeated, this time by the score of 5 to 1. The Miners presented practically the same team, and, although the Pikers had been coached to defend themselves against the Miners' "pet" holds, the body scissors and the arm lock, the Rolla men won practically all the matches without difficulty. Captain Meeker was the only Piker to win. He toyed with Schramm throughout the match and won easily. The feature match of the card was furnished by Brewer and Martin. Neither man won a fall and an extra five minute period was necessary to decide the match.

The first Missouri Valley meet of the year ended disastrously when the Pikers were defeated by Kansas, six to nothing. The Kansans presented an exceptionally well balanced team and won easily. Captain Meeker wrestled with a torn ligament in his arm, sustained in practice a few days before the meet, and consequently was far off form. However, he put up a good struggle against the Kansan, who worked on his bad arm to win the match. Brewer was the only Piker to perform up to par and an extra five minute period was necessary before the match was awarded to his opponent on points. The Kansas entries had no difficulty in winning the other matches.

W. A. A. offered "The Guest," a silhouette, the chief actors of which being the feet of the co-eds, while the imagination of the audience was used to supply the rest of the interest.

Ken Mair, presided over by an austere judge (Harriet Chittenden) and sitting as a court, passed judgment upon the program of the Glee Club, which introduced song, dance and humor. Applause was enthusiastically bestowed upon the jazz of the Glee Club, particularly that of "Dot" Ringer.

"The Football Game," by the girls of McMillan Hall, employed the slow motion method of presenting a Washington game. The players were take-offs on well-known "W" men, while every one, from the coach to the flapper and the "tea hound," was ably and humorously depicted. This act, because of its local interest, was perhaps the best received and appropriately culminated one of the most successful programs which has been staged by a Washington University organization in the past several years.

John Becker as General Burgoyne delighted the audience repeatedly by his excellent interpretation of a role which in its wit and urbanity fairly coruscates with such lines as "Let me entreat you to be hanged" and others comprising some of the best to be found in Shaw.

Of the lesser characters, those standing out were Major Swindon, a contrast to General Burgoyne, played by Hale Nelson with authority and martial vigor, aided greatly by his excellent command of staccato utterance; Essie, the adolescent orphan, enacted with pathos truly touching at times by Ellen Barber; Christopher Dudgeon, the yokel, done very amusingly by Charles Smith in contrast to Miss Barber's lachrymose Essie; the sly Surgeon, played adroitly by Dudley Thomas; the bibulous but sanctimonious uncle, played by Hale Nelson, and the muscular hangman by Adolph Pessel.

The large audience was evidently appreciative and the general newspaper comment was that the play had made a fine impression.

C. E. Trip

Derby made an all-day trip to Cheesman Dam, an enormous masonry structure 217 feet high, holding back a lake six miles long. On their return, they encountered a severe hail storm, which caused several washouts along the road. The hail carpeted the ground so thickly that the machine was stopped for a real snowball fight.

Finally on Sept. 22, the party left for Denver, where they stopped for a day to inspect the system of distributing and purifying the city's water supply. In the afternoon, the party made a specially arranged trip through the mint, where they observed the complete process of money-making, from the molten metal to the finished new "Peace Dollar." As a grand finale, every one was permitted to gaze on $359,000,000 of Uncle Sam's legal tender, and finally, a gold brick worth $11,000 was passed around for every one to hold and admire.

After other visits to the Museum, the Capitol, and other places, the party broke up with the feeling that the trip was in every way the "best ever."

commenced her plea. Flitting, floating, flying, with graceful movements she sinuously shifted to and fro, in and out. The crowd was entranced by her graceful gyrations and stronger grew her influence over mere man. She moved her feet fast. She moved her feet slow. She didn't even move her feet at all. She waltzed, she toddled, she shuffled and she shook. And didn't Allah weaken, didn't he fall, didn't he shout, "Oh, daddy, buy me one of those"? He did. * * * Even as you and I.

The Architects now believe in the power of their Fair Fatima as never before. All their prayers were answered. The miserable members of the less fortunate schools have gone to meet their maker, and that is as all good Architects would have it. The new queen, the successor of the late Fatima, is hailed in with cries of "Long live Fatima." Now after the huzzahs have died down in the distance the Col. reports that "All is quiet on the Potomac."

that for the major part of the season the team was denied the services of Captain Denny and Milton Koch. While in the game, till the time of his injury, Denny had played brilliantly, and Koch had been depended upon as a bulwark of strength in the line till his unfortunate injury in the Rolla game.

With the return of the veterans of this year, and the moving up of several good men from the Freshman squad, the chances are exceedingly bright for a successful season in 1923.

"Yes, we girls are funny creatures. All we have to pay for is a lipstick, some powder, and a can of rouge. Why should we worry about meals? When our dates have money we go to the Statler. When they are broke Garavelli's and Vescovo's are always open. When they offer to buy us a coke we always take the 'Daily Special.' We never have a stay at home date unless they have taken us to the American or to the Schubert-Jefferson and a few Fortnightlies, to say nothing of a dinner or two at the Chase.

But come to think about it—Aren't Boys Funny Creatures Too? We suggest amusements by the dozen just to help them spend their money, then snob them when it is gone. But the dizzy sapheads continue to fall for us and still people think we are brainless." HA-HA-HA."

in the last two rounds greatly weakened the Rolla entry and gave the Piker a hard-earned victory. The feature match of the card, at least from the standpoint of the spectators, was the heavyweight encounter between Volland and Sargeant. Sargeant won the decision. Volland's plunges and Sargeant's waiting tactics combined to turn the fight into a farce. In the third round Volland terminated one of his rushes by falling through the ropes far out of the arena when his opponet side-stepped.

The only Missouri Valley meet was that with Iowa State College. The Pikers forfeited in the heavyweight division and so lost the meet, 4 to 3. Victory in this meet entitled the man to a letter. In the 175-pound class Johnny Morse won on a foul in the first round from Clampett of Ames. Joe Senturia lost a close decision to Ricardo Cilley, an Argentinian, after an extra period. Rouser of Ames won a well-earned decision over Mike Alfend in an interesting and hard-fought match. In another extra round contest, Charles Dawson won from Alberto Cilley in the 135-pound division. The Argentinian brothers both showed up to advantage. Edward Randall at 145 pounds clearly outpointed Lee Jacobs and was awarded the referee's decision. Randall used his speed to advantage in reaching his opponent and in causing him to miss. At 158 pounds, Captain Ludwig lost to Harry Sherwood on a technical knockout in the first round. Had the Pikers had a heavyweight they might have won that encounter and thereby their first Valley meet, but they were forced to forfeit in this class and therefore lost the meet, 4 to 3.

The Pikers next journeyed northward and were defeated on successive nights by the teams that they had beaten the week before on their home court. Ames won, 28 to 17, in a game in which Minner featured by making all of Washington's points. Grinnell next defeated the Pikers, 22 to 20. In this encounter the Pikers were crippled by the absence of Lyle, Wagener, and Schnaus. But for this one disastrous trip in which the Pikers dropped two games that had been counted upon as certain victories, Washington would have finished in third place on the final standings.

The next game of the season was the most exciting played on the Piker court last year. Nebraska was defeated, 34 to 32, in a game that required two extra periods. With the Pikers behind in the last ten seconds of play, Minner tied up the score with a basket from the side of the court which slipped through the hoop just as the gun went off. Wagener again tied it up in the last second of play in the first extra period and the game was won by a two point margin created when Minner caged a beautiful shot from the middle of the floor in the last period. Cozier played brilliantly for the Cornhuskers, scoring seven goals from the field.

On the next trip the Pikers again dropped two games. In the first encounter Nebraska defeated Washington, 24 to 22, in a game that rivaled the one of the preceding week. At no stage of the game did more than four points separate the two teams. The game was lost in the last minute of play when Cozier and Usher came through with baskets for Nebraska. Minner again played brilliantly, accounting for sixteen of his team's points. The second game was played against Missouri and was lost, 41 to 26. Missouri entirely outclassed the Pikers in this encounter and had no trouble in winning. "Bun" Browning, Missouri's All-Valley forward, played a wonderful game for the Tigers, while Minner and Thumser starred for the Pikers.

The closing games of the season were played against Drake on the home floor. In the first game the Pikers were sadly off form and lost, 39 to 26. Wilhelm scored twenty-seven points for the Bulldogs, while Minner was so closely guarded that he was able to account for but twelve points. After a complete reversal of form the Pikers came back strong the next evening and thoroughly outclassed Drake to win, 38 to 27. Minner scored twenty-five of Washington's points.

Captain Thumser is the only man who will graduate and with this year's freshman team, which was the best in years, to bolster up the regulars and reserves of this season, Washington should have the nucleus for a championship team in 1924.

A ROMANTIC RHYME

(Ed. Note: This rhyme, reproduced by special permission, was the year's best seller at the Bookstore. Over 100 copies have been sold to McMillan Hall residents.)

If you've ever heard a whiffle whiff
Or an oogle umph beseech,
You'll know just what the reason is
For the ocean's sandy beach.

In other words I'd have you know
The reason for this and that,
Or why a flea prefers a dog
And not a wampus cat.

But if I try to tell too much
Of what nature does and don't
In time you may know more than I
So now I think I won't.

Oh, list to my sorrowful story.
I can a tale unfold,
As the monkey said as he hung from the tree,
So to you it shall be told.

It's just a song of anything
And if you'll lend an ear,
I'll gladly sing it to you
And try to make it clear.

It's all about an unknown King
Who ruled in an unknown land,
With a derby hat upon his head
And a bamboo cane in hand.

Now this king he loved a princess—
She was young, graceful and fair,
Slim, dainty, and very pretty,
With golden eyes and laughing hair.

Of course there was a villian too,
By name the Baron de Pest,
Five feet two in his naked feet,
From the wilds of the wooly west.

He plotted to unseat the King
And kidnap his lady fair
So he bought a knife and some loaded dice
And a great big grizzly bear.

A Romantic Rhyme

In his days of youth this grizzly bear,
Who came from the region Polar,
Had contracted an awful toothache
And the King had removed the molar.

Now the bear whom the King had befriended
Was a very good friend of the King's
So when he heard of the direful affairs
He resolved to perform several things.

He ran away from the Baron,
To the land of perpetual ice
But before he left he unloaded
The Baron's loaded dice.

And as he ran from the Baron
He broke the knife in two
And the Baron did not know just what
In the wide, wide world to do.

The Baron tried to shoot the King
With the pair of unloaded dice
But they exploded harmlessly
Which for the King was very nice.

And when informed of the dastardly deed
He condemned the plotter to die
To be shot at sunrise in the evening
Then hung on the Fourth of July.

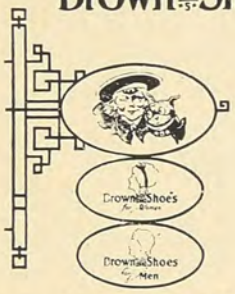

But the sun did't rise in the evening
And the Fourth of July was postponed
So the Princess pardoned the Baron
And the King the pardon condoned.

The Baron was exiled to a land,
A region away so far,
And the place to which he was exiled
Was the region called Polar.

The grizzly bear—he found the Baron
And he ate the Baron too;
But the tears streamed from his innocent eyes
For this he disliked to do.

The Glee Club Trip

THE night of Sunday, February 4th, witnessed the exodus from Saint Louis Union Station of fifty nice, clean-cut students of Washington University—a few of them musically inclined. Two Pullman cars, a crew consisting of one Special Traffic Manager, namely one Gibbon Wright; one Pullman Conductor, namely one James Bayley; two dusky gentlemen of color, answering respectively to the names of George and Raymond; one hundred and seventeen grips and valises; forty-eight instruments; fifty-two decks of cards, and thirty-seven pairs of dice, added to the above mentioned fifty musicians, constituted that now world-famous and justly celebrated expedition—the Washington University Glee, Mandolin and Banjo Clubs, en tour.

After an all night journey, during which very few communed successfully with Morpheus, the clubs reached the thriving metropolis of Rock Island, Illinois, where is was discovered there would be a three hour layover before the journey northward would continue. After a handsome breakfast of the proverbial "ham and ——", the majority of the men visited the Government Arsenal, located between Rock Island and Davenport, Iowa. Various groups risked the guard-house by snooping around the buildings, examining tanks, liberty motors, cannon, and other implements of warfare. Lynn Meyer nearly left the clubs for good, for they caught him trying to sneak two twelve inch cannon balls away as souvenirs.

Dame Fortune for the second time waved her magic wand over the clubs. The first time, when every man made the train on time at the Union Station, and now the second time when no one was left behind at Rock Island. The scenery of the northern country was a real treat. The Mississippi, and the adjacent lowlands, and the bluffs attracted many of the boys. "Bob" Miltenberger is naturally a fussy personage and always craves his morning shower. Modern Pullman cars are not furnished with showers, so "Bob" proceeded to take a bath in the Mississippi. It was not altogether intentional on his part. Childlike he wanted to see how the men cut the ice from the river and walked in a leisurely fashion and a dignified manner towards the scene of action. But before he reached his destination the ice gave way and "Bob's" dignity soon melted in the icy waters of the "Father of Waters".

That night the first concert of the tour was given at La Crosse, Wisconsin, under the auspices of La Crosse Shrine Club. The weather was anything but pleasant. Snow, sleet and a fairly good house greeted the boys. They put on a real concert that night. It was said that the quartette had some trouble among themselves but this rumor was never confirmed. Entertainment was noticeable by its absence. Left to their own resources after the show, most of the men retired at an early hour, a few however parading the streets and visiting Chicken Charlie's—a notorious hash-house, where great quantities of the feathered delicacy of extremely doubtful origin were consumed.

It was a wild ride for the men in the Pullman that night. The Dirty Four started their work. Sleep was out of the question. Who are the dirty four? Well, there was Arthur—the fellow who slept(?) in lower 11; Vetter, the blond baritone, and Russell, who slept(?) in upper 12; and Kurrus, the poker hound. Only one thing marred the pleasure of the evening, and that was that John Bohn, the director, suffered from a severe attack of rheuin 56 3/5 seconds, equalling the interscholastic record for the event and coming within one-fifth of a second of the "Big Ten" record.

On March 10, the Piker swimmers met and defeated the strong Kansas Aggie team by the score of 34 to 25. The Red and Green relay team started in with a vengeance and won handily, establishing a Missouri Valley record of 1:52 4/5. Captain Bob Mudd and "Doc" Helbing were high point men for Washington, each scoring eight points. The illness of Henry Ulrich was keenly felt, as it kept him from winning both the fancy diving and back stroke events.

The 1922-23 swimming season is now past and successful as it has been, it would seem that the future holds even greater glories in store. Next September will witness the return to school of almost the whole of this year's squad, and these veterans will be reinforced by a most promising array of talent from this year's freshmen. Ewerhardt, Gilbert, Mathews, and Frielingsdorf have shown a great deal of class in the "crawl" events, while Kohring and Stark may be counted upon to make themselves felt in the "breast stroke." "Kewpie" Mitchell will fill up a very weak gap in the "plunge" event, since this two hundred-pound lad can already do better than sixty-three feet.

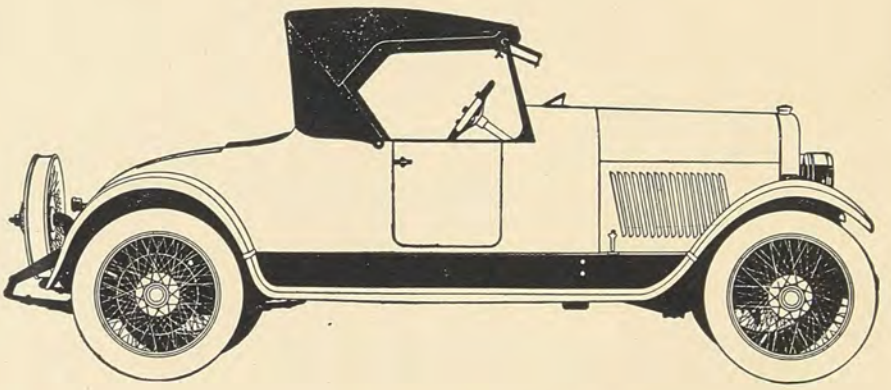

"Don, did you notice Phyllis at the prom last evening?"

"Perfect knock-out."

"Yes and those darling shoes—"

"Oh well, they came from Hamilton-Brown."

matism and had to sleep with one hand in hot water. He was greatly relieved the next morning after all night treatments by the dirty four, who turned good Samaritans, for the time being. One other case of illness was reported that night when "Red" Dixon was seized with acute indigestion, but the application of iced towels soon took him off the hospital list.

Estherville, Iowa was visited on Tuesday. Here the thermometer registered 10 degrees below zero. After a concert, given in the Grand Theatre, under the management of Mr. F. H. Graff, a dance was held in the ball room of the same building. Many a reputation was made, and, alas!—a few unmade. Rumor has it that the illustrious "Swede" Fletcher tramped slightly over five miles, admiring a northern moon. Verne Vance was almost thrown out of the hotel by the clerk for insisting that he had mail. "Vic" Sherman was not far behind either. The clerk thought he was "Non compos mentis" for the same reason. The month of February was a great month for Verne because of the hilarious time he had on the Glee Club trip, but he says June will be better because he will get his degree and be finished with the "Quad" forever.

Wednesday noon found the clubs with a six hour layover, in a wide place in the road bearing the striking name of Sibley, Iowa. After numerous excursions up and down the street, an impromptu concert was held for the high school children. They constituted the most appreciative audience in the trip —due to the fact that the more the dear children applauded the less time would they have for classes. Tremlett, Schulz and Hoagland had to do some tall explaining to the city constable as to why they were running up and down the railroad in sight of the whole town, with only their B. V. D.'s on as a covering.

The Glee Club Trip

That night the men were the guests of the Lions Club of Sioux City at a formal dinner. They gave a private concert for the club and were later the guests of honor at an enormous wild west carnival. After the crowd awoke to the fact that the men were appearing in formal attire purposely, and with no idea of masquerading, the party continued—a pop-eyed, roaring mob that rivaled the most hilarious aggregation in any pest house on record. Guy Golterman earned the name of being the cheapest man on the trip. He beat Bonecellie (Hammerstein) out of two and one half cents, and refuses to this day to pay the said two and one half cents. Can you imagine anything so cheap?

Thursday morning found the men in Omaha, Nebraska. The best concert of the trip was given there for the men seemed to realize that at last they had reached a city. It is true that Sioux City is a city with many country clubs, including the Blue Cow, but Omaha is a city after our own hearts. A free lunch was secured from the Rotary Club at noon and was enjoyed by all but "Swede", who just never could get up before three. After the concert that night, a dance was given for the men at the University Club by the members of the Washington Alumni Association of Omaha. By far the most cordial reception and entertainment was accorded the men in Omaha, and it was here that Jim Branch and 1st Bass Crowe felt the pangs of torn heart strings. Society editors have notations calling their attention to the fact that these two men will again visit Omaha shortly after commencement.

You all know the cute little curly headed fellow known on the roll-books of the professors as Curt Gallencamp? He was known only as Curt to the fellows until he hit Omaha, when he acquired the name of "Breath of Spring". His fantastic dancing, his pleasing manner, his courtesy, his perfect use of the English language, and his accommodating disposition earned him the name. And Barksdale was not far behind. These curly headed fellows do vamp the women. Reith told Barkie to be careful but Barkie knew better.

Dame Fortune again visited the men when George refused to allow a detective to search the Pullmans for some parking signs that had disappeared from around and about the station in Sioux City the night before. Why, any one should think that such nice, clean cut fellows would do such a thing as to take a "No Parking" sign from a street curb and put it by Fred Neimeyer's bunk, and a "Danger—Keep—Away" sign on Don Wylie, was more than the men could fathom. They were quite indignant about the whole affair and were thankful for George's faithfulness.

Not satisfied with the wonderful entertainment shown the men at the dance, they roamed the streets until the wee hours in the morning. Arthur craved apples and in endeavoring to satisfy his hunger Kurrus, Russell and Bohn wandered forth to see what they could find. They thought they had found the desired fruit stand at 10th and Capps, but alas, they sold five cent soda for the price of twenty-five cents a bottle. Poor Henry went to his

With the chap that wears them—with the man that sells them, because every day someone is telling someone else.

It is a fact that there is more downright satisfaction in wearing PERFECTO SHIRTS. We know it because we go to a lot of extra trouble to put it there.

The materials, for example, are just a bit better than most makers think fellows appreciate. There's more room across the shoulders, around the chest and to tuck in than there actually has to be. The beaded neckband and the reversible cuffs are other features which makes friends with lads who pick their shirts carefully.

That's why the man behind the counter likes to see you select PERFECTO SHIRTS. He knows you'll come back for more eventually and you must admit that's good business for him and for you.

berth hungry and tired after riding all the way from Omaha to Council Bluffs in a taxi cab and for which neither he nor Kurrus nor Bohn paid.

Since the next concert was to be given in Council Bluffs, just across the river from Omaha, most of the men who had any money left spent Friday in Omaha. Friday night a concert was given in the Broadway Methodist Church in Council Bluffs under the auspices of the American Legion. The men were guests at a dance given in their honor after the concert at the Grand Hotel and thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

The last night out was none too mild. Joe Cushing favored the men with "Aggravatin' Papa", while Shipley paid the price for sending a card of appreciation to a member of the clubs for the wonderful concert given in La Crosse.

A vast amount of rope and numerous sulphur candles were found in one of the Pullmans after the Council Bluffs concert and if rumor has it right, the Dirty Four were to pay for their good times, and sleepless nights. Arthur got wise before anything could be done and hopped off the train at St. Joe. He did not show up in Saint Louis until some time the next week. We understand he came home on a freight, but the freight got wrecked near Columbia, Missouri.

The trip was a decided success musically as well as otherwise. Many favorable comments on the work were received, and although the hospitality of the South, which several of the old men had enjoyed on a previous trip, was lacking, nevertheless the trip proved entertaining and instructive as well as a trifle exciting.

L'Envoi

NOW as our task closes and the time draws near for the old staff to pass out and the new one to take over the reins of the next publication of the annual, the 1925 Hatchet, it might not be inappropriate to reminisce a bit on the experiences enjoyed by us during the course of the past year's work.

It is not until the close of the year that the Hatchet Board realizes the true magnitude and responsibility placed upon it by the Junior Class, but to say that we enjoyed our work would be putting it mildly, for the feeling of confidence and trust put in us by our classmates is in itself a pleasurable compensation.

Although it is a relief to have a thing done, nevertheless we envy the incoming staff with their new ideas and, perhaps, greater opportunities to give our Alma Mater something beneficial and something of which it can be proud. Because of this infusion of new blood from year to year, each new staff, of course, will endeavor to go its predecessor one better—even as we hope we have done. We wonder if this will work out better in effect on future Hatchets. Perhaps yes, but, as time rolls by, what will be the result brought about in the 1974 Hatchet—fifty years from now? At any rate, will the maximum degree of improvement be reached by that time? We think not. It is only too evident that no plateau can long exist in the graph of progress.

However that may be, we have done our best and that which has been accomplished is the outcome of a most agreeably harmonious force, and so, with our passing reign, we extend to the incoming staff our best wishes and hearty co-operation, and we commend to them as their guiding star during the succeeding period, the spirit of progressiveness that not only manifests itself in the outside world, but which has invaded our own campus.
